President Says Summit Aided Peace

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (UPI) — President Nixon is home from a summit journey which he says advanced the cause of world peace and brought the elusive goal of curbing offensive nuclear weapons "significantly closer."

In the windy and remote setting of an airbase in Caribou, Me., Nixon was welcomed back last evening by Vice President Gerald R. Ford, two bands, a little girl with a bouquet and a cheering crowd of 4,500.

While the Spirit of 76 that had carried him 25,000 miles through the Middle East, Europe and the Soviet Union during the past month was refueled, Nixon told Americans on nationwide television he was glad to be back "from a journey that has advanced the cause of peace in the world."

After the 20-minute speech he and Mrs. Nixon, with their daughter Julie and son-in-law David Eisenhower, who had met them in Caribou, reboarded the big white and blue jet and flew to Key Biscayne for a weekend of rest.

They bypassed Washington, where most of the Congress had already left town for the Fourth of July holiday, but where the House Judiciary Committee is considering Nixon's impeachment, a District Court is trying his former aide John D. Ehrlichman in the Ellsberg break-in case and where the Supreme Court considers Monday whether the President can refuse prosecutors' subpoenas.

His White House chief of staff, Gen. Alexander M. Haig, said Nixon is "feeling fine" but "really needs a break and a rest in Florida."

From Loring Air Force Base in Caribou, Nixon told Americans that while he and Soviet Communist Party General Secretary Leonid I. Brezhnev did not reach agreement to limit offensive nuclear weapons, "we did bring such an accord significantly closer." He said each agreed to negotiate a new offensive arms agreement well before 1977, when an interim agreement signed in 1972 expires, and that each is sending new instructions to representatives at Geneva disarmament talks on the subject.

Nixon said the accords reached at the summit — limiting defensive missiles and underground nuclear tests, providing for cooperative research on health, energy and housing

Arms Limit Levels Stalled Agreement

Kissinger Still Sees Eventual Russian Pact

PARIS (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger arrived in Paris today to confer with French leaders about the U.S.-Soviet summit in Moscow which he said could lead to an eventual strategic arms limitation pact.

Kissinger arrived at Orly airport from talks in Brussels with the Belgian premier and officials of the Common Market and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Kissinger told a news conference before leaving Brussels that it had not been possible for Russia and America to balance the levels at which each side wanted to set limitations. He denied the Moscow summit produced any secret arms deals.

"The next step," he said, "is to see whether by extending the (current temporary limitation) program over a longer time frame, whether a solution can be found and we are fairly optimistic that one can be found."

Kissinger was asked about a statement by Belgian Premier Leo Tindemans who, after breakfasting with the American secretary, told newsmen, "In armaments talks, all results are not always announced immediately."

"All discussions that took place in Moscow have been put before the (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) council today," Kissinger said.

"I explained to the council the structure of the strategic arms talks. There are no secret agreements or understandings."

A newsman pressed Kissinger as to why he was so optimistic on an eventual arms agreement, considering the relatively meager results of the summit.

"In a short time frame, for example five years (the period of the current agreement), building programs on both sides may begin to operate at the end of the period," Kissinger said.

He said that the search for a permanent agreement might therefore be overshadowed by pressures to get new programs underway as soon as the period ends. But he added:

"We believe that the discussions were deep and, I believe, searching. I believe that perception by both sides of the nature of the problem has greatly improved."

Kissinger said this boded well for new approaches to the problem.

Kissinger began a busy Fourth of July by breakfasting with Premier Leo Tindemans of Belgium and spending an hour with European Common Market President Francois Xavier Ortoli and External Affairs Commissioner Sir Christopher Soames.

Tindemans, who once attended a summer course at Harvard University organized by Kissinger, said the secretary's attitude toward efforts to relaunch European integration was "generally favorable."

As he rushed from the Common Market to NATO, Kissinger told newsmen that he, Ortoli and Soames "discussed Common Market-U.S. relations in a very constructive atmosphere. It was extremely good and of substance. We are making excellent progress."

But Soames told newsmen that the 45-minute meeting stopped short of solving all U.S.-European problems.

"There has been a considerable improvement in Atlantic relations from a year ago," he said. "But obviously there still remain differences.

"We must make sure that U.S.-European relations grow naturally. This will take time but there are no hangups at the moment," he said.

Soames said Kissinger discussed the summit, the European Security Conference and "one or two problems."

But he said the Common Market's attempt to have closer relations with Arab countries, which stirred Kissinger's anger earlier this year, did not come up today.

Watergate Stamp Use Under Probe

I-J Special Report

CHICAGO — Postal authorities yesterday said they are investigating the appearance of Watergate stamps designed by a Tiburon artist on mail in the Chicago area.

Martin J. McGee, divisional chief inspector in the area, said "our main concern is to be sure that any mail does not get through bearing other than an official stamp."

The stamps designed by Peter Martin, a former magazine publisher, bear pictures of figures in the Watergate incident, including John Dean and H. R. Haldeman.

They are not illegal as long as they are not used with intent to defraud the Postal Service. They have shown up on letters posted in Chicago, however.

Fire Destroys Small Cottage

A flash fire — probably caused by a Franklin stove — yesterday gutted a two-room cottage on Cameron Street on the Inverness Mesa.

Firemen arriving at the scene at 10:30 p.m. found the 60-year-old board and batten cottage already engulfed in flame. Efforts were confined to knocking down the remaining structure to protect neighboring homes.

The value of the cottage, owned by Lloyd Mery of Inverness, was estimated at $5,000 by Fire Chief Richard Graveson.

The name of the tenant of the cottage was not known.

Cosmonauts Stage A Space Docking

MOSCOW (UPI) — A two-man Soviet spacecraft has docked with a Russian space station orbiting the earth and "everything is going well," a spokesman for visiting American astronauts said today.

Moscow Radio said the manned Soyuz 14 spacecraft was launched last night to link up with the Salyut 3 space station sent into orbit June 25.

"They told us it had docked and everything was going well," said Jack Reilly, spokesman for the nine American astronauts training with Soviet cosmonauts for their 1975 joint Soyuz-Apollo space mission.

The radio said Soyuz, manned by Col. Pavel Popovich and Lt. Col. Yuri P. Artyukhin, was launched in Central Asia at 9:51 p.m. Moscow time yesterday, just four hours after President Nixon flew back to the United States from his Soviet summit.

Reilly said the U.S. astronauts had been given no advance notification of the flight but were told about it this morning on their way to breakfast at the Yuri Gargarin Space Center where they are training with the cosmonauts.

Brig. Gen. Thomas Stafford, the Apollo commander for the joint flight, "wished them every success," Reilly said.

Diplomatic sources speculated last week about a possible Soviet manned space flight during Nixon's visit. The sources said the Kremlin presumably held off to avoid risking failure with Nixon on Soviet soil.

"The flight program of the Soyuz 14 spaceship envisages joint experiments with the orbital scientific station Salyut 3," the Tass report said.

The launch was the Kremlin's first manned space shot since two cosmonauts made an eight-day flight last December in a Soyuz 13 craft.

There was no immediate official word how long the cosmonauts would remain aloft or

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Martha Asks Legal Separation

NEW YORK (UPI) — Martha Mitchell, wife of former attorney general John N. Mitchell, yesterday asked for legal separation from her husband preliminary to a suit for divorce.

Martha

According to papers filed in Manhattan Supreme Court, Mrs. Mitchell informed her husband of her request for a separation on May 21.

Mrs. Mitchell's attorney, Richard Creditor, in moving for a hearing seeking separate maintenance and weekly support for his client, said the hearing would be "preliminary to a suit for divorce."

The hearing was scheduled for July 15.

Critic Is Dead

GAMBIER, Ohio (UPI) — John Crowe Ransom, the distinguished poet and literary critic who edited the influential Kenyon Review for 20 years, died in his sleep yesterday at the age of 86 at his home here.

His "New Criticism," which stressed the importance of close textual analysis in evaluating poetry, played a dominant literary role in the nation throughout the 1950s.

The theory was expounded by a group of Southern poets, of whom Allen Tate and Robert Penn Warren, as well as Ransom, were important members. The Kenyon Review, which Ransom started in 1939, exerted tremendous influence both in the United States and Britain. It ceased publication in 1971 for lack of funds.

A Rocket Attack

PHNOM PENH (UPI) — A 107mm rocket fired in an attack on the Phnom Penh waterfront area today landed just outside the gates of the ancient royal palace where exiled Prince Norodom Sihanouk once lived.

Another rocket struck the grounds of the Cambodian Hotel, which was under construction as a luxury residence at the time of Sihanouk's overthrow in 1970 but now houses only refugees living in squalor. At least two of the refugees were wounded by the rocket blast. A third rocket fell near the Chatomuk Conference hall on the banks of the Bassac River but caused no casualties.

In South Vietnam, the second-ranking American diplomat in the country told a July 4 ceremony at the huge American compound at Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base that U.S. military and economic aid to Saigon must continue.

"A failure by the United States to meet its obligations, moral and political, will have a damaging effect on the attitudes of our friends and a dangerous effect on the attitudes of our adversaries," said W. J. Lehmann, charge d'affaires at the U.S. Embassy.

Uprising In Bangkok

BANGKOK (UPI) — Police fired on a mob of about 1,000 persons who attacked a police station in the city's Chinatown district early today, killing six persons and injuring at least 14 others.

The fighting was the most serious clash between police and civilians since the overthrow of Thailand's military government in two days of bloody rioting last October.

Police said all the dead were rioters who tried to storm the Plabplachai police station following the arrest of a taxi driver who parked in a restricted zone. The police statement said five of the injured were plicemen.

Bomb At Embassy

PARIS (UPI) — Police officials said today they suspected that an anti-Castro Cuban living in the United States was responsible for the explosion of a bomb in front of the Cuban embassy yesterday.

Police said the assailant probably left France immediately after the explosion.

Officials said they had no knowledge of any anti-Castro group operating regularly in France and thus blamed the attack on a "hit-and-run outsider.

TODAY'S WORLD

"Remember how you used to lie awake nights worrying about the payments on this junk?"

Schlesinger Views Pact On Weapons

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary James R. Schlesinger says the United States and Soviet Union each can test a new generation of nuclear weapons by the time the limited underground test ban, negotiated at the summit, takes effect.

The summit agreement, announced in Moscow yesterday, bans underground nuclear tests over 150 kilotons of explosive power beginning March 31, 1976, and limits the number of tests below that size.

Schlesinger told a news conference yesterday that in the intervening 21 months the United States plans to conduct underground tests for nuclear missiles to go in the new Trident submarine, a new warhead for the Minuteman ICBM and new weapons to be carried by aircraft.

As for the Soviets, Schlesinger said: "I would assume they would use this period to finish proof testing weapons for their new generation of missiles." Four kinds of Soviet missiles have been under testing, one with multiple warheads.

Schlesinger called the agreement "significant" and a benefit to the United States in that it will prevent the Soviets from going farther and developing still more potent weapons than those now under development.

With Congress mostly out of town for the Fourth of July, there was little immediate reaction to the summit accords. Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., called the testing agreement "close to being a charade." He said there will be "every incentive for both sides to test to the maximum before the 1976 deadline."

Mondale called lack of agreement to limit offensive nuclear weapons "even more disappointing."

"Both the administration and the Soviets bear responsibility for this failure to make real progress," he said. "The Soviets are recklessly pressing for marginal advantages and the administration, weakened by Watergate, is unable to deal effectively and flexibly with the Soviets."

Violation Charges Fly In Mideast

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Israel and the Arabs stepped up their war of words today, trading truce violation charges in a possible new threat to the fragile peace in the Middle East.

The Arabs accused Israel of "aggression" in launching reprisal raids against Palestinian targets in Lebanon. The Israelis charged Egypt with cease-fire violations in the Sinai Desert.

Field Marshal Ahmed Ismail, the Egyptian war minister, said yesterday at the opening of an Arab military conference in Cairo his nation was prepared to go to "the ultimate extreme" to defend "every inch" of Lebanese territory.

Two hardline Arab states — Syria and Algeria —offered to station warplanes and troops in Lebanon to defend the Palestinian targets from Israeli attacks.

Conference sources said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam and Algerian Foreign Minister Abdel Aziz Bouteflika made the offers during a three-hour closed session last night.

The sources said Lebanon, which has stayed out of the last three Middle East wars, was unlikely to accept troops or warplanes for fear of being dragged into a major conflict with Israel.

The conference sources said Lebanon would prefer Arab financial aid to bankroll a 10-year, $1 billion defense plan to revamp its own armed foces.

The Palestine Liberation Organization asked for increased Arab military aid, but promised to stage future raids from bases inside Israel to "deprive the enemy of any pretext to launch aggression on Lebanon."

Military sources in Tel Aviv accused Egypt yesterday of violating the Suez Canal ceasefire agreement by extending fortifications 100 yards into the U.N. buffer zone in the Sinai Desert.

The Tel Aviv newspaper Ma'Ariv said Israel notified the United Nations of the alleged truce violation, but U.N. officers did not "attach military or political significance" to the fortifications.

Convicted Robber Is Jailed Again

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A convicted bank robber surrendered to a California Highway Patrol officer yesterday minutes after he allegedly robbed a savings and loan firm of more than $2,000.

After a short auto chase, officer Tom Blackmore fired two shots over the suspect's head and Jay N. Eliott, 50, surrendered.

Authorities said Eliott was convicted of the 1967 holdup of a Van Nuys bank, but served only 90 days of a 20-year sentence.

GROUPS CLASH — Protesting Vietnam veterans and their supporters clashed with police near the Capitol in Washington yesterday as the veterans tried to cross a police line. Several persons were hurt and police threatened to arrest the veterans as they marched from their campsite on the Mall to the Capitol during evening rush hour traffic. (UPI Telephoto)

Veterans Vow To Avoid Conflict

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vietnam veterans bloodied in a run-in with police yesterday vowed to avoid further confrontations over their permit to stay on the Mall early today in order to keep their forces together for a noon rally today.

Another group of veterans, acting separately from the Vietnam Veterans Against the War-Winter Soldier Organization (VVAW-WSO), also was in Washington for an Independence Day rally demanding improved benefits and services from the Veterans Administration.

The National Bonus March Coalition of veterans from all wars planned to gather in a park several miles from the Mall headquarters of VVAW-WSO and conduct a separate rally across from the White House.

VVAW-WSO, a more politically-oriented and leftist group demanding unconditional amnesty and an end to U.S. support of Cambodia and South Vietnam, planned a march to the Lincoln Memorial and another parade down Constitution Avenue to the Ellipse behind the White House.

They have had a permit for several days to conduct all-night vigils of political discussions near the Capitol.

But Tuesday and yesterday morning, they were threatened with arrest when some of them fell asleep in the park, a violation of the permit. Later Wednesday about 250 veterans and their supporters broke police lines as they tried to march through rush-hour traffic to the Capitol.

A shoving match started, and police clubbed at least a dozen protesters to the street, injuring three seriously enough to require hospitalization. Five were arrested. The demonstrators, however, were allowed to hold a small rally on Capitol Hill.

A bearded man wearing a fatigue jacket charged police lines yelling, "I had five years as prisoner of war, you bastards. I've got more right than you have to be here."

After the VVAW-WSO demonstrators were peacefully evicted from their campgrounds early yesterday by riot-ready federal police, they returned at daylight and marched to the Justice Department to demand universal unconditional amnesty.

At another rally in San Francisco, singer Joan Baez told 100 persons supporting Vietnam War veterans that "we have a debt to pay to the people we sent over to Vietnam."

Yesterday's rally, protesting alleged inadequate benefits to Vietnam War veterans, was staged in front of the Veterans Administration building in San Francisco.

Speakers called for more active political lobbying to force the VA to sponsor better schooling, hospital care and job opportunities for Vietnam veterans.

Miss Baez told the rally Vietnam veterans were "sent to Vietnam to do our dirty work for us. We kept our hands clean while they fought the war, and we should listen and pay attention to their needs."

Marinite Is Facing Fraud Arraignment

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A San Anselmo social worker and a San Francisco psychiatrist and author will face arraignment July 23 in Municipal Court here on Medi-Cal fraud charges.

In hearings yesterday and Monday before Judge Mary Moran Pajelich, Stanley Seiderman of 18 Park Drive, San Anselmo, and Dr. Price M. Cobbs were charged with billing Medi-Cal for services rendered by Seidermann.

Regulations require that services be provided only by or under the direct supervision of a physician, and the prosecution alleges that this wasn't the case.

Dr. Cobbs is the co-author of "Black Rage" and "The Jesus Bag," and is a professor of clinical psychiatry at the University of California Medical Center.

The charges cover about $63,000 worth of bills paid by Medi-Cal during 1972.

Franklin Brann, Cobbs' lawyer, said the charges amount to "clear harassment" of his client, who is black.

"If he were white this would not have happened," Brann said.

The attorney hopes to prevent the case from going to trial by arguing that Cobbs has been subject to discriminatory prosecution.

Contrary to the fraud charge, he said, Cobbs "consulted" frequently with Seiderman, reviewed cases of individual patients and wrote their prescriptions.

A Potter's Fancy Turns To The Sky

VANCOUVER, Wash. (UPI) — John Odell, a potter with dreams of the sky, plans to take to the air today in what he says is the world's largest hotair balloon—147,000 cubic feet.

Odell said yesterday, he will be making his solo flight in the balloon he hopes to use to travel to all 50 states during the next two years as part of the American Bicentennial Celebration.

Man Booked In Burglary Probe

Warren Booth Spaulding, 30, of 1360 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, was arrested yesterday by the San Rafael Police Department on suspicion of burglary.

A police spokesman said he was arrested near Second Street and Grand Avenue at about 7 p.m. in connection with the June 19 burglary of the Irene Ciano residence on Devon Drive.

Spaulding was booked into Marin County Jail where he was being held in lieu of $2,000 bond.

when their craft would dock. Boris Petrov, chairman of the Intercosmos Council, said yesterday the Soviets did not plan a "prolonged flight."

The Salyut program is a Soviet attempt to match America's successful Skylab program, climaxed last winter when three Apollo astronauts docked with a Skylab space station for a record 84 days in orbit.

Three cosmonauts docked with Salyut 1 in 1971, but died on the flight back to earth when their vehicle lost pressure. Salyut 2 went up in April, 1973, but disintegrated after an unexplained accident.

Soyuz commander Popovich, a 44-year-old space pioneer, made his only flight, a Vostok 4 mission, in 1962. Artyukhin, 44, a cosmonaut since 1963, has never made a space flight before.

He said that on a broader international scale, his visits to the Middle East and Europe as well as Russia were all interconnected and all part of an overall purpose to seek solutions through negotiation.

Gold Price Takes Drop On Market

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The price of gold dropped below $130 an ounce today for the first time since January. The U.S. dollar advanced on a broad front.

The London bullion market fixed the price of gold at $129 an ounce in the afternoon, down $7 from the previous day's closing price of $136.

"Gold doesn't earn interest, and speculators are clearly looking at least for the time being for an investment which does," a dealer for the Sharps Pixley brokerage office said.

The U.S. dollar's rise was backed by a record 12 per cent prime lending rate by a number of American banks.

Bankers Trust Co. of New York raised the prime rate yesterday to 12 per cent and a number of West Coast banks immediately followed suit.

Prime rate fluctuations usually affect the standing of the dollar abroad and the currency advanced in all major European markets today, although it weakened in Tokyo.

The dollar opened in London at $2.392 to the pound, better than its closing rate of $2.39625 and well up from yesterday's opening rate of $2.4020.

It advanced from 4.81 to 4.8250 French francs in Paris, where the Bank of France has been intervening for two weeks trying to keep the lid on the franc, which has been boosted by credit restrictions.

The dollar advanced from 2.5390 German marks to 2.547 in Frankfurt, 2.9690 Swiss francs to 2.978 in Zurich, 2.645 guilders to 2.6563 in Amsterdam and from 39.615 Belgian francs to 39.65 on the Brussels free market.

It opened at 645.50 lire in Milan, also up on the overnight close of 644.40.

In Tokyo, the dollar was up at the opening at 286.25 yen, dropped to a median rate of 285.40, one yen under yesterday's price, then strengthened marginally to close at 285.60 yen.

Pound sterling gained in Frankfurt and Zurich, opening at 7.1275 German marks and 6,093 Swiss francs.

OBITUARIES

MRS. THIES

The death of Florence J. Thies, a resident of San Anselmo, has been reported to the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Thies, 71, died Sunday in a local hospital following a brief illness.

A native of Illinois, Mrs. Thies came to Marin County six years ago to live with her son, Henry Thies, at 39 Dutch Valley Lane.

Funeral and burial was in Illinois.

March Is Led By Angela Davis

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — About 2,500 persons filed behind Angela Davis and other civil rights leaders today for a march through downtown Raleigh to protest the state's death penalty.

Miss Davis told the group that the march "is only the starting point" of a new nationwide civil rights actism.

She said the movement had languished for six years due to "lack of organization and consciousness," but a new group — the National Alliance Against Racist and Political Repression —was ready to lead the people into the streets.

Miss Davis, co-chairman of the alliance, marched with Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, and Clyde Bellecourt, an American Indian leader.

Another Quake Jolts Pacific

BERKELEY, Calif. (UPI) — The University of California Seismographic Station Wednesday reported another severe earthquake in the South Pacific off New Zealand.

UC officials said the temblor registered 6.75 on the Richter scale and its epicenter was in the Kermadec Islands area, 5,600 miles southwest of here and 1,200 miles northeast of Wellington.

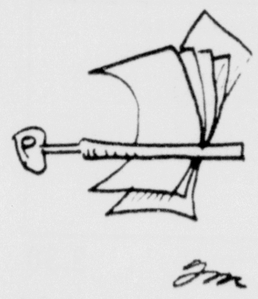
The shock was recorded at 4:38 p.m. PDT.

The quake was in the same area where a 7.3 Richter scale jolt was recorded Tuesday.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Best To Pay Traffic Tags



If you forget to pay a traffic tag or to go to court, the police will get a warrant out for your arrest. For moving violations, a record of your address and driver's license number makes it likely that when you have to renew your license the warrant will appear.

On parking violations the registered car owner is responsible. Lending your car to an irresponsible driver will mean that the tags will be your responsibility. A notice of warrant will be sent to your last registered address.

Most police departments are part of an area-wide or statewide information network. The records of warrants are fed into computers and any time a person comes in contact with the police, the warrant check may be made. A traffic stop, a crime, a search on entering a government building, or any police investigation that may involve the person, may call for a warrant check.

Larry Late was riding around in a car which matched the description of a car used in a crime. The police stopped him. Larry was cleared of any involvement in the crime, but not until a warrant check was made. It showed he owed $45 in traffic tickets. Larry didn't have the bail and he was taken to the police station. They searched him and found a small quantity of marijuana.

Larry now had to face narcotics chargs.

Ordinarily, when a person is stopped for an investigation, the police only have a right to make a "pat search" for weapons, if the circumstances justify this.

When a stop is made for a minor traffic offense, there is no right to make any kind of search if the person is willing to sign a promise to appear on a citation. However, other grounds for a search can exist, such as contraband in "plain view."

But if there is a warrant outstanding and bail can't be immediately posted, the police have a right to "book" the person, permitting a search just as any "arrest and booking" into the jail.

The name Wolfgang is of German origin and literally means path of the wolf.

BARBARA PETERSON

Funeral for Barbara Jean Peterson, sister of Mary Pauley of San Rafael, has been held in Scotland.

Miss Peterson, 78, died June 26 at her home in Carluke, Scotland, after a long illness.

She was born and reared in Scotland. In 1961 she visited Marin County and made many friends in the area.

A retired registered nurse she had worked in hospitals in Edinburgh and Aberdeen.

She was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Clearing The Suez: It's Big Work

By JOHN K. COOLEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CAIRO — American soldiers, sailors, and Marines are back in Egypt after more than 30 years' absence.

They have come at the invitation of President Anwar Sadat to clear the Suez Canal. The force represents the first U.S. military presence here since the 1941-45 period, when the World War II Ilies battled the German and Italian armies in North Africa.

The mines in the canal water already have been cleared by the RH-53 Sea Stallion minesweeping helicopters of the U.S. Navy's Mine Warfare Force, leaving the ones on land still to be removed.

And some 1,500 U.S. Army, Navy, and Marine Corps personnel have gone ashore to take in hand the training and advising of Egyptian military canal-clearing and ordnance teams. The salvage operation of the ships blocking the canal is yet to begin.

Many of the new American arrivals are billeted in Cairo's old Hotel Victoria, a respectable relic of British colonial days. A "U.S. Military Information Office" has been set up in the old U.S. Information Service Library in Cairo's Garden City quarter.

This is a 19th Century building, once set afire by anti-American African student demonstrators and finally closed in the Arab-Israel war of June, 1967, when Egypt broke diplomatic relations with the United States.

Inside, a U.S. Army colonel and a U.S. Navy commander dispense generous quantities of photos and news releases about the canal-clearing operations.

On one recent day, as a Sea Stallion "chopper" towing a magnetic minesweeping device exploded six mines, Egyptian television staffers and foreign correspondents who entered the press center at a television building in Cairo were astounded.

They found there a U.S. Navy officer in dress whites — Capt. Felix S. Vecchione, U.S. Navy Commander of Mobile Mine Countermeasures Command, from Charleston, S.C. Captain Vecchione and several fellow officers dressed in battle fatigues, briefed newsmen exhaustively on the latest progress of the canal operations.

Only last year, before and during the October Arab-Israel war, this same television building had echoed to ringing denunciations of "American imperialism." Now, as one of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers officers also present at the briefing put it, "These Egyptians just couldn't be any friendlier than they are."

This, together with the influx of hundreds of U.S. businessmen, potential investors, and technical consultants eager to share in what President Sadat's government hopes will be an unprecedented peacetime economic boom, is one of the most tangible outward signs of the new U.S.-Egyptian relationship, boosted by President Nixon's visit.

For the moment, the main job ahead is getting the Suez Canal cleared and reopened to international trade. Until recently the main support base for the whole operation was the U.S. Navy's amphibious assault ship Iwo Jima. She was replaced by her sister ship, the USS Inchon.

Like the Iwo Jima before her, the Inchon was anchored about six miles off Port Said. Here, where units of the Soviet fleet once docked, and where Israeli planes pounded the harbor and city during the October, 1973 war, the U.S. Navy trained Egyptian Navy frogmen in American techniques and equipment for removing unexploded ordnance from the water.

The sweeping of the canal and the Bitter Lakes involved finding and neutralizing scores of mines placed by both Egyptian and Israeli forces since the 1967 war. The Sea Stallion helicopters, with a crew of six, towed a system of cables and sharp cutting blades, called Mark 103, for moored mines.

An acoustic device, Mark 104, also was towed when needed. Magnetic minesweeping gear, called the Mark 105, is a sled-like device about 23 feet long and eight feet high, mounted on hydrofoils so as to ride the surface like water skis.

After removing sea mines from the 101-mile-long canal and its approaches in Port Said and Suez bays, the next step was to remove and detonate unexploded bombs and shells in the water and along the banks.

As the U.S.-Egyptian ordnance teams search the sandy banks, they will meet thousands of anti-tank and anti-personnel mines, many of them booby-trapped. The Suez Canal Authority wants to clear an area averaging 50 yards back from each bank, a project that the U.S. Navy estimates may take a year to complete.

Next, the work of salvaging the hulks of wrecked boats and other nonexplosive obstructions will begin. Mashur Ahmed Mashur, chairman of Egypt's Suez Canal Authority, has indicated the contract will go to the Murphy Pacific Salvage Co. of the U.S. The U.S. Navy plans to lease two heavy salvage craft, now in Subic Bay, Luzon, Philippines, and Key West, Fla., to Murphy for the task.

Six U.S. Army battalion advisory teams have been assigned to Egyptian engineer battalions for training.

Egyptian Rear Adm. Amin Fouad is the overall commander and coordinator of the operation, which also included British Navy minesweepers. The U.S. commander is Rear Adm. Brian McCauley, whose forces swept mines from Haiphone harbor in North Vietnam last year.

Before the canal is reopened, probably sometime next year, some 40 small craft and 16 merchant ships, trapped in the canal when it was blocked in June, 1967, will have to be cleared. One ship was sunk during the October 1973 fighting. Six have been kept in seaworthy condition by crews continuously rotated since 1967, but salvage operations will be needed to get the others out.

Other manmade obstructions also must be removed. There are the pontoon bridges built by the Egyptian Army to cross the canal last October. Awaiting repair is the damaged rail and highway swing bridge at al-Firdan, just north of Ismailia. Finally, there stands the causeway built by the Israeli Army for crossing the canal in Gen. Ariel Sharon's final Israeli counteroffensive last October.

After this, the Suez Canal Authority intends to dredge, again with U.S. assistance, the canal channel to restore it to its pre-1967 depth. Dire predictions about the amount of sand accumulated on the bottom have turned out to be untrue.

When the dredging is finished, ships of up to 45,000 deadweight tons and drawing up to 38 feet of water will be able to pass through the canal. According to Osman Ahmed Osman, Egyptian minister of reconstruction, "We will then widen and deepen the canal in another operation, which should take about six months."

Larger ships including oil tankers of up to 60,000 deadweight tons will then be able to pass with less-than-capacity loads from the Red Sea to the Mediterranean, and, as before 1967, top off their tanks with more crude oil at Mediterranean tanker ports.

For the following phase of the dredging work, Egypt has been promised more than $1 billion in loans from Japan, West Germany, the U.S., and Arab states. This phase, spread over several years, would create a channel large enough to take supertankers of 200,000 deadweight tons, and still larger ships in ballast (without cargo) or partially loaded.

Well before this is completed, however, Egypt expects to be operating the new Suez-to-Mediterranean oil pipeline (SUMED), which has had many false starts. This now is to be built by an Italian consortium, because the Bechtel Corp. of San Francisco bowed out after price disagreements with the Egyptian government earlier this year.

What Mashur's Suez Canal Authority and the various Western consultants studying the problem currently are puzzling over is how much use there will be of the reopened canal.

Before 1967 it carried about 170 million tons of oil from the Middle East to Western ports. Last year, this flow, combining the Cape of Good Hope route around Africa and the oil pumped through pipelines to the Mediterranean, reached around 426 million tons.

Since the canal initially will be able to take only small tankers of 45,000 tons, only about 30 per cent of the existing world tanker fleet will be able to use it fully loaded. This would rise to about 40 per cent, taking into account tankers partially loaded or traveling in ballast.

Nontanker cargo shipping would enjoy less of an advantage than tankers. For example, from Sydney, Australia, to London, via the Cape route around Africa, the distance is only 880 miles further than via Suez.

There is much more saving on a trip to Japan — more than 3,000 miles. But the new giant container ships cannot pass through the canal.

In any case Egypt is confident that a reopened canal will play the central role in its own prosperity, once it has again become the major avenue of international trade it was in ancient times.

Widespread Test Cheating By Nurses Is Reported

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A nationwide pattern of cheating on examinations to become registered nurses has been reported by a California official.

Michael R. Buggy, executive secretary of the California State Board of Nursing Education and Nurse Registration, said nationwide effort is being made to stamp out the cheating. "But it has gone to the point where — as far as security is concerned — we seem to be going through a fruitless exercise," he said.

Buggy said in an interview Tuesday that New York officials estimate 80 per cent of the repeaters who finally pass the test have done so by cheating. He said no estimate has been made in California. He said the attorney general's office has been unable to prosecute the few cheaters who are caught.

The cheating involves the uniform nationwide examination given by all states at various times throughout the year, Buggy said.

He said the cheaters take the test early in the year to memorise and compile the questions, then circulate them to friends all over the country. He said New York, Illinois and New Mexico also have serious cheating problems. He said many foreigners are involved. Foreigners may face deportation if they can't qualify for jobs.

Buggy said he and other state nursing registration officials have received anonymous letters telling of the cheating pattern. As proof, the writers include the examination questions.

In one case, a nurse recruiter in Los Angeles "was paying foreign candidates $35 to $50 for every question reported back, and was selling the list as a refresher course for $90. And since the candidates were foreigners, he was threatening them with deportation if they reported him," Buggy said.

The attorney general was unable to prosecute because there is no law against bringing questions out of an examination room in one's memory, Buggy said. But a regulation has since been written forbidding the disclosure of the contents of the examination.

Another case involved a candidate who failed the test in California "but passed it a couple of weeks later in Pennsylvania and became licensed in California through reciprocity, even though it showed on her application that she had failed here," Buggy said.

The fire started at about 6:30 p.m. behind 175 Ridgewood Drive and burned 10 acres within an hour. The cause is unknown.

Smog Board Seeks Office Expansion

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Bay Area smog officials agreed yesterday their staff has grown so much that a $770,000 office expansion is needed.

The Air Pollution Control District had 84 employees when it moved into its $1.7 million eight-story headquarters at 939 Ellis Street in 1968. It now has 224.

District directors unanimously approved a plan to add two floors of office space and two floors of parking on an adjacent district-owned lot.

The present building apparently would be large enough to provide needed space, but a tenant has a lease through 1979 for one of the two floors of parking and two and a half of the six floors of office space.

The district's chief administrator, D. J. Callaghan, said the space had to be leased out to help pay for the building, thus could not have been left empty to save the cost of expanding.

Callaghan suggested the possibility of using the building to house a proposed regional governmental agency now moving slowly through the Legislature. The proposed agency would take over the district and other regional bodies.

John S. Bolles Associates chitects for the expansion, mated costs at $545,200 for struction. Callaghan put total cost at $704,000 to c fees, equipment and furn ings, plus $66,000 for the lot.

The district has a fleet of vehicles, but parking is nee for only about half since rest remain in the field mos the time.

Construction is scheduled be completed by next spri Callaghan said.

District directors also ceived a staff report that notices for violating smog c trols were issued in Marin Sonoma in the past two mont Cited in Marin were San menico School in San Ansel and the Village Fair in Saus to.

Support Pledged To Mrs. Peron

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — The body of Argentina's late President Juan D. Peron was borne under rainy skies to symbolic burial today with military and political leaders pledging support to his widow and successor, Maria Estela (Isabel) Peron.

Mrs. Peron, 43, led the nation of 25 million in paying final respects to Peron after four days of official mourning. Peron died Monday at 78 of heart and kidney diseases. Thousands of Argentines stood in the rain for a last glimpse of Peron's coffin as it rolled past on a military caisson.

Before the funeral procession started, blonde Mrs. Peron, dressed entirely in black, stood beside the flag-draped coffin in the jam-packed congress building and listened dry-eyed as military men, labor leaders, politicians and government officials promised to back her government.

Lt. Gen. Leandro Anaya, the army commander, spoke for the armed forces. Anaya pledged to the deceased president, "right here and now, before your body and your immortal soul," to support the constitution which elevated Mrs. Peron, as vice president, to the presidency following her husband's death.

Ricardo Balbin, leader of the Radical Civic Union, Argentina's second largest political group after the Peronist party, said, "I say to you, Madam President, that in the name of the political parties, we are at your side".

Balbin said the opposition political parties support the continuance of the Argentine civilian political system "which you now symbolize."

Speakers representing the majority party, the supreme court, labor organizations and the political institutions voiced similar sentiments.

Carlos Menem, governor of La Rioja province, broke into tears in the packed assembly as he promised the nation's support to the new president.

The closed casket was then covered with a sheet of plastic against the falling rain. It was carried on a military caisson drawn by an army truck on the 10-mile route to the chapel of the suburban presidential residence at Olivos for burial honors. The body will not be buried, but will be placed in a provisional shrine to be opened to the public in about two weeks.

Thousands of people stood in the rain along the route of the funeral procession for a glimpse of the coffin moving past. It was accompanied by armored troop carriers, infantrymen in combat uniform carrying automatic rifles and the ceremonial presidential grenadiers on horseback.

Hundreds of youths, some carrying Argentine flags trimmed with black crepe, ran along trying to keep pace with the procession. At times they chanted "Peron, Peron."

Soviets Block Another American Broadcast

MOSCOW (UPI) — For the second time in 24 hours, Soviet authorities last night pulled the plug on an American television network broadcasting via satellite on the hunger strike of nuclear physicist Andrei D. Sakharov.

The blackout of a CBS News filmed report on Sakharov came after an official of the State Committee on Television and Radio had expressed regret about a similar incident Tuesday night.

The official said Soviet technicians refused to transmit what they considered anti-Soviet materials.

A CBS spokesman said the technicians suddenly got up from the television control room and walked out as the network was readying its latest Sakharov report last night following President Nixon's departure. Later they returned and shut down the monitors.

The walkout came at 11:40 p.m., 20 minutes before the expiration of the satellite service contracted for by American networks during Nixon's visit.

An attempt to report on the second blackout via a satellite radio circuit also was blocked, the CBS spokesman said.

A telephone call to the CBS bureau here from New York was delayed for more than three hours. A Moscow telephone operator at first told New York no one was in the office although someone was there.

When the call finally did come through the quality of the line made it unusable, the spokesman said.

American network officials said they had been promised by Soviet officials after Tuesday night's blackouts that the trouble would not be repeated.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, asked at a news conference yesterday about Tuesday's incident, said, "I don't know the details of what the Soviets did, but I don't approve of it."

Ethiopian Army Agrees To Seek Crisis Solution

ADDIS ABABA (UPI) — The army pulled back from the brink of a full military takeover today and agreed to seek a solution to Ethiopia's worst crisis in 40 years through the democratic process.

The military's decision followed a dramatic confrontation yesterday between Emperor Haile Selassie —intervening directly for the first time — and leaders of the army revolt and the civilian government.

At the talks in the Jubilee Palace, the army presented five demands, including the implementation of a new constitution as soon as possible, amnesty for political prisoners and the extension of parliament through the summer recess.

Western diplomatic sources said the army's emphasis on parliament indicated moderate elements in the military had gained the upper hand over radicals and they were now prepared to seek a peaceful solution.

Course Slated On Bicentennial Fete

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (UPI) — Iona College in New Rochelle is offering a three-credit course on how to run a bicentennial, as part of a graduate program on the nation's 200th birthday.

For $204, school officials said yesterday, graduate education students can enroll in "a workshop study of methods to promote the celebration. Emphasis in this course is placed on bibliographic material and audio-visual techniques for use in conducting bicentennial observances."

Brown Charges Reagan's Budget Cuts 'Insensitive'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democratic candidate for governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. says Gov. Ronald Reagan's cuts in the new state budget were "insensitive."

At a news conference yesterday, Brown, the secretary of state, said it was "totally wrong" for Reagan to cut in half from $5.5 million to $2.6 million a state loan to begin mandatory vehicle smog inspections in the Los Angeles area South Coast Air Basin.

"The governor failed terribly in efforts to clean up the air, especially in Southern California," Brown said.

The cut was one of $107 million in vetoes made by Reagan before he signed the record $10.13 billion budget. The governor said $2.6 million was "sufficient" to start the program, which begins this fall in Riverside County and was scheduled to spread throughout the populous Los Angeles region.

Las Vegans Ignore Amnesty On Tickets

LAS VEGAS (UPI) — Folks here apparently don't recognize a good opportunity when they see one or else, in this wagering capital, they are betting the authorities will never catch up with them.

Only 24 persons out of 23,000 appeared in Municipal Court to clear up traffic tickets and arrest warrants during a three-month amnesty program designed to clear up a nine-year backlog.

Melones Dam Initiative Attacked

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The California Water Resources Association yesterday announced its opposition to the Stanislaus River Protection Act of 1974, an initiative which will appear on the Nov. 5 ballot.

"A statewide committee of eminent water, civic, financial, labor, agricultural and environmental leaders is being formed to oppose this initiative," said William E. Moore Jr., president of the statewide, non-profit water-users oriented group.

The river initiative, which qualified by collecting more than 325,504 signatures, would include parts of the Stanislaus in the California Wild and Scenic Rivers system, thus prohibiting construction or operation of flood control projects that would diminish public use.

Specifically, it was designed to prevent completion of the New Melones Dam project.

Moore said in a statement:

"Organizations which circulated the initiative petition have made a broad series of misrepresentations of fact which led a few members of the media to take an editorial position supporting this measure.

"The U.S. Supreme Court recently rejected a suit by these same groups attacking the project on environmental grounds," he said.

Moore said that "among the dangers of this initiative" are:

"The statewide public may be misled into making an unwise decision on a matter of vital interest to a four-county area through distortions of fact."

"Through use of this technique local projects of any kind, whether it be water, electric power, transportation or house, can be picked off one by one by well-financed pressure groups."

Trial Of 'Zebra' Four Is Postponed

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Trial of four suspected "Zebra case" slayers has been postponed to Sept. 16, at the request of defense attorneys, it was learned yesterday.

Superior Court Judge Morton R. Colvin ordered the trial delay which had been scheduled to get under way next Monday.

Charged in connection with 13 random street slayings of whites by blacks were: Larry Craig Green, 22 J. C. Simon, 29 Manuel Moore, 29, and Jessie Cooks, 28.

Judge Colvin had two special requests under consideration from Cooks' court-appointed lawyer, Roger C. Pierucci.

He asked that Oakland pathologist George W. Loquvam, be retained as an expert witness to review autopsy reports of the murder victims.

Pierucci also asked that private investigator Harold K. Lipset be hired to assist in preparation of a defense.

Lines Are Swamped For Campsites

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Park Service says the new system for reserving campsites in 21 national parks is swamped with telephone calls it cannot yet handle.

Park Service Director Ronald H. Walker said this week that Park Reservation System Inc. has had trouble hiring personnel and obtaining facilities to handle as many as 10,000 calls a day.

Walker voiced these points for vacationers planning to make reservations:

Write at least 10 days before departure, if possible, to Park Reservation System Inc., P. O. Box 1976, Cedar Rapids, Iowa 52406. Do not write to the National Park Service.

Reservations may be made by telephone only if you can charge the fees on Bank-Americard or Master Charge credit cards. Callers who do not have one of those cards cannot make telephone reservations.

Telephone reservations can be made by calling the toll-free number 800-553-8425 or the toll-charge number 819-363-0221. Callers are urged to keep their calls short and to specify the park selected, the dates of their visit, the number in their party, the type of camping equipment and whether they are bringing pets.

Include this same specific information in mail applications.

Also include in mail applications the $2 reservation fee, plus the rental for the campsite. To calculate the amount you should send, find out the nightly rental fee at the park and multiply it by the number of nights you will stay, then add $2 for making the entire reservation.

Telephone callers who do not have BankAmericard or Master Charge credit cards will be mailed information and a reservation application form to be submitted by return mail with payment of all fees.

Contrary to the original plan announced last month, offices at the national parks themselves are not yet able to accept reservations for other parks.

Vacationers leaving within the next 10 days who cannot make telephone reservations should be able to get campsites anyway, when they arrive at the parks, on first-come, first-served basis, Walker said.

American Cause Group To Be Formed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Sen. George Murphy of California has announced the formation of American Cause, a bipartisan group which he said hopes to restore and preserve the values of this nation.

Murphy, 72, said the new citizen-oriented organization is based in Washington and will be financed by contributions.

Reagan: Individual Freedoms Declining

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Government bureaucracy and waste are destroying individual freedoms and hastening inflation, Gov. Ronald Reagan said yesterday.

"I sense a great danger in our increasing tendency to turn to government for the answers to our problems," he said. "I think we can see that individual freedoms are declining in our lifetime because of that tendency."

Reagan spoke before the 57th annual Lions International Convention here, a service group which he called "one of America's significant contributions to the rest of the world."

"I think action by groups of private citizens like yourselves is the answer to many of the country's problems," said Reagan after criticizing the "increasingly burdensome bulk of legislation" passed in state and federal legislatures.

"Problems are a bureacracy's reason for being," said Reagan. "Bureacracy connot exist without problems, and so our problems persist."

Reagan said that consumer protection legislation, in particular, was responsible for higher product costs and increased prices. He also attacked Internal Revenue Service regulations.

"In America it takes more intelligence to figure out your income tax than to earn your income," said Reagan.

California To Hire 1,000 More Firefighters Soon

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California will hire about 1,000 additional seasonal firefighters at a cost of roughly $5 million because of a new federal law, state Forester Lewis A. Moran said yesterday.

"We're going to almost double our staff because of minimum wage and overtime provisions of the new federal Fair Labor Standards Act," Moran said in a statement.

Last summer the Division of Forestry hired 1,800 temporary employees to fight wildfires. That number will have to be boosted to about 1,800 because of the federal law, Moran declared.

"We'll be reducing our normal 120-hour, on-the-job week to 60 hours. At some fire stations our crews will work more than 60 hours and receive overtime pay," Moran said.

He stated the federal law requires firefighters to be paid overtime for more than 60 hours of work, which includes time spent sleeping, eating and resting at a fire station.

The Division of Forestry protects more than 28 million acres of land. Major wildfires have already charred more than 31,000 acres this year, more than twice as much as last year at this time.

Kidnap Tale Is In Fifth Month

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Where is Patty Hearst?

The FBI in San Francisco has asked approximately 16,000 people that question and the Los Angeles office several thousand more and all indications are they don't have a clue.

Five months ago today the heiress was carried screaming from a Berkeley apartment, presumably a kidnap victim. Now she herself is wanted for kidnaping, bank robbery and assault with a deadly weapon with intent to commit murder.

Last Saturday, was to have been the day of her wedding to Princeton graduate Steven Weed. Instead she is a fugitive, with her life on the line if she resists arrest, and facing years in prison if she surrenders.

Miss Hearst was last positively identified in Los Angeles on May 18, the day after six members of the Symbionese Liberation Army died in a wild shootout with police on the edge of the black section of Los Angeles.

John Morrison, the FBI spokesman in Los Angeles, is asked daily what progress is being made in finding her and two other surviving SLA members —William and Emily Harris.

"Obviously, we do not know where she is," he says. "She was last seen in the Los Angeles area and we are operating on the premise she may well be here. It is a good place to hide. We follow up every lead."

Although he terms it still definitely a major case, Morrison makes it clear that some of the urgency has gone out of the matter now that the SLA has been crushed as a terrorist organization.

"We look on it now as primarily a hunt for three fugitives wanted on federal and state warrants," he says.

At one time more than 150 agents were working there full-time on the case, but now the number has been reduced by about half.

The Hearst family is reported by a family spokesman to be in utter despair, thinking there is no way out for their daughter now no matter what she does.

Mrs. Catherine Hearst, who broke her wrist in a fall several weeks ago, is attended by a full time nurse. She leaves the house about an hour a day but otherwise is in seclusion.

Randolph Hearst flies occasionally to New York on business, sometimes goes to his office at the San Francisco Examiner, where he is president and editor, but otherwise spends most of his time at home.

Weed has dropped out of sight in the past few weeks.

How and why Patty Hearst underwent her transformation may never be explained but that she did is underlined by comparing excerpts from her tapes — one a week after the Feb. 4 kidnaping and the second 10 weeks later:

"Mom, dad, I'm sorry ... I'm not being starved or beaten or unnecessarily frightened ... I just hope I can get back to everybody real soon."

And:

"To the pig Hearsts ... I am a soldier in the people's army ... I have chosen to stay and fight."

Vice President To Visit Reno

RENO (UPI) — Washoe County Republicans say they are almost sure Vice President Gerald Ford will be in Reno July 30 for a fund-raising luncheon.

"We think he may be but we're not sure yet," Washoe County Republican Central Committee Chairman Dan Poggione said.

A spokesman for Rep. David Towell said Ford's visit was 90 per cent sure.

Quadruple Killing

LIVORNO, Italy (UPI) — A quadruple killing in the countryside apparently was part of a vendetta by a cigarette smuggling ring, police said yesterday.

Technological Advancement Can Produce Hangups, Too

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — One of the great frustrations of life is that the bright promise of scientific research runs amok in its own technological advancement.

Take the productive use of waste heat from electric power generating plants. For years, researchers have painted glowing pictures of the potential for crop production, greenhouse application and in the commercial production of fish and seafood.

And there have been notable successes in this field, in the Northwest and the New York-New England area, in Japan and other countries.

But there are notable failures, also.

First, let's take a look at what we're talking about. Consider the Tennessee Valley Authority's Browns Ferry Nuclear Plant. That facility will use 1.9 million gallons of water per minute for cooling purposes.

That's a river of water, literally — equal to the average flow of the Little Tennessee River at its juncture with the Tennessee River and equal to one-tenth of the flow of the Tennessee River in North Alabama where the plant is located.

Put it another way: The City of Atlanta uses around 102 million gallons of water a day, 120 million gallons a day in hot weather.

The Browns Ferry Nuclear plant will use that much water for cooling every hour of its operation — and more.

And that means, regardless of beneficial uses of heated water, that millions of dollars will still be needed for giant cooling towers for such plants.

One other point — the waste water is not hot water, it's warmed up 10 or 15 degrees, 30 degrees at the most from its temperature in the river or lake from which it comes. But that's enough temperature increase to have effects on production of vegetables in greenhouses, or field crops where underground pipes are installed to transfer the heat to the earth in which the crops grow.

Now the clinker. Back in the 1960s, TVA got interested, as did a number of other organizations, in use of heated water to increase fish production — mainly catfish in the Southeast.

Tests showed it would work.

SPREAD OF SIKHISM

Religion Draws Young And Old

By MARY LEYDECKER

The spread of the Sikh religion in this country is "not confined just to youth," a Sikh leader from India said yesterday during a visit to his sect's ashram in San Rafael.

Sardar Hukam Singh added, though, that "always youth are more revolutionary" than their elders and that the younger generation is more apt to espouse new ideas than older people.

Hukam ("sardar" is a title like "mister" or "brother" and all Sikh men adopt the name of "Singh") was paying his first visit to the San Rafael (ashram) but he has been to this country several times as an Indian official.

Now retired and devoting his time to a Sikh committee which deals with the purity of the religion, Hukam formerly was the speaker of the Indian parliament and also governor of the state of Rajasthan.

The twinkly-eyed man dressed in a business suit and the Sikh turban, Hukam sat on the floor with other Sikh leaders and discussed his religion, which he called "a way of life."

Also present were the president of the governing body of the Sikh in the Eastern Hemisphere, Sardar Gurcharan Singh Tavhara the secretary, Giani Mohinder Singh, and Yogi Bhajan, head of the Sikhs in the Western Hemisphere.

Hukam and Yogi Bhajan, the only two of the group who speak fluent English, noted that most of the residents of the San Rafael ashram (yoga learning center) on Culloden Park Road are young Americans who have converted to the 500-year-old Indian sect.

"Children of this land want real values," Yogi Bhajan said. "They ask questions," he continued, about the relative values of today's society.

"They are looking for a reality beyond the ritual of living."

As some of the young people who live in the ashram quietly slipped into the carpeted upstairs room and joined those sitting cross-legged on the floor, the leaders explained their religion.

Unlike Hinduism, the sect is monotheistic, with an emphasis on meditation as a means of experiencing God.

There are no personalities (like Jesus) worshipped in the sect and no ordained priesthood. The leaders called Sikhism "the first democracy in the world" because all people are considered equal and the first guru, after baptising followers, was himself baptized. (Sikhs are baptized with a two-edged sword.)

Women are considered complete equals but given a special respect because of their motherhood. "Women are not 'chicks' to us but the 'grace of God,'" Yogi Bhajan said.

There are some strong taboos — including smoking, adultery and the shaving of hair from any part of the body, "but we are people, not saints," Hukam said. Like members of other religions, Sikhs sometimes trangress, he explained.

The Sikhs in this country do not drink alcohol nor eat meat, but traditionally, when Sikhs have served as soldiers, they "took some meat and drink."

Hukam said he was proud of the Sikhs' longtime ban on smoking, which preceded by hundreds of years that modern realization that cigarettes are harmful to the health.

As for shaving, he laughed and said, "People ask me why I grow a beard. I ask them, 'why do you shave?'"

He indicated that hair is a gift of God and considered useful in preventing "weaknesses of the joints," which the Sikhs believe accompany shaving of the legs.

"Everyone works," Hukam said of the Sikhs. The president who accompanied him is a member of the Indian parliament.

Sikhs are strong believers in education and many American Sikhs are doctors, lawyers and professors. They also are prosperous people, the men said, and in Yuba City, where the group was to visit today, Sikhs own a large portion of the rich farm lands.

But being a Sikh in today's world is not easy, Hukam said, because "temptation is so attractive."

However, the religion is noted for "very little crime," and Yogi Bhajan said that the ashram in San Rafael, opposed by some neighbors because of the communal living of its members, had proved "we are unpaid policemen."

He said that there has been "no theft, no burglaries" in the Culloden Park Road neighborhood since the ashram moved there three years ago.

There are eight million Sikhs in Indian and some two million scattered "in all the other parts of the world," the men said. In California, some 15,000 families are members of the Sikh religion and new members continue to join "although we do not try to evangelize or convert people."

But "we welcome and include" people who want to become Sikhs, he said, calling his "the religion of humanity."

EXPLANATION — A group of leaders of the Sikh religion discuss their sect's tenants during a visit yesterday to the ashram in San Rafael where a number of young American converts live communally and study yoga. Left to right are Surjit Singh Barnala, Sardar Hukam Singh, Sardar Gurcharan Singh Tavhara, Giani Mohinder Singh and Yogi Bhajan.

New Sausalito Development Policy Advances

An ordinance to stop developers from filing more than one building proposal at a time for a single piece of property was approved unanimously last night by the Sausalito Planning Commission.

If a second development application is filed for the site, said Planning Director Herb Case, the earlier application would become void.

Case said that the law was designed to keep the public from being confused about what was being proposed for a piece of property. One case where such confusion could arise, he said, was the Schoonmaker property in the Marinship area for which three development applications are being processed by the city.

The ordinance now goes to the city council for approval.

Meeting Set For Diabetics' Parents

A meeting for parents of diabetic children will be at 8 p.m. next Thursday in Marin General Hospital's Blue Room.

Dr. Conrad Ellner, psychiatrist, and Dr. George J. Monteverdi, pediatrician, will lead the session, which is sponsored by the Marin County Diabetes Associates.

Colson Testifies In Break-In Case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charles W. Colson, who goes to jail Monday for obstructing justice in the Ellsberg break-in case, says it was President Nixon and Henry Kissinger who spurred the effort to discredit Daniel Ellsberg after he leaked the classified Pentagon Papers.

Testifying yesterday in the trial of former presidential adviser John D. Ehrlichman, Colson —himself a defendant before pleading guilty —said Nixon, Kissinger and others requested any information possible about Ellsberg.

At issue is whether Ehrlichman specifically authorized the White House plumbers to burglarize the office of Ellsberg's psychiatrist. He has admitted approving a "covert operation" to get information on the former defense analyst, but denies knowing the plumbers had a burglary in mind.

After six days of testimony and a recess for Independence Day, the prosecution is expected to rest tomorrow.

At the House Judiciary Committee impeachment hearings yesterday, two former Nixon reelection aides, called as defense witnesses, testified on the question of "hush money" payments to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

Some committee members from both parties said witnesses Frederick C. LaRue and Paul L. O'Brien, the first of six men requested as witnesses by Nixon lawyer James D. St. Clair, added little to Nixon's defense.

But some Republicans said their testimony shows that John W. Dean III, Nixon's chief accuser, "embellished the truth" when he told Nixon the payments were intended to keep Hunt quiet about "seamy" campaign operations.

St. Clair may have to rely heavily on Dean's testimony to make his case, because the two other witnesses with direct knowledge of the Hunt payments may not testify. Former Nixon chief-of-staff H.R. Haldeman has said he would invoke the Fifth Amendment, and there were reports former Attorney General John N. Mitchell would follow the same course.

St. Clair, however, predicted that Mitchell would not refuse to answer questions. Both Haldeman and Mitchell go on trial in September on charges related to the Watergate coverup.

O'Brien, former attorney for the re-election committee, testified he had understood Hunt's demand for $120,000 from the White House was to be for legal fees and living expenses.

According to three GOP members, O'Brien said Dean "embellished the truth" when he told Nixon on March 21, 1973, that Hunt's was a blackmail demand.

During his testimony at Ehrlichman's trial, Colson was asked who requested that damaging information on Ellsberg be obtained and disseminated.

"Specifically, in this instance, the President," replied Colson. "It was the President's desire and Dr. Kissinger and others to get out whatever information available as to the reasons about what had been done."

New Light On Oil Pollution

By JOHN DILLIN
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — Blackened beaches, dead birds, oily-tasting oysters — these are some of the occasional results of oil pollution of the oceans. But is this pollution a serious threat to the world's environment?

Despite all the publicity and public outrage over a few sensational oil spills, the dangers of long-term oil pollution still are not adequately understood by natural scientists, says a new Ford Foundation study.

This ignorance, the study concludes, must be corrected rapidly to aid national policymakers on the verge of important decisions.

Federal research funds to study pollution, however, remain "grossly deficient" in spite of the urgent need for better information, the study says.

The report's authors warn:

"Because so many serious questions remain unanswered, and because of the alarming implications of some of the information available, we recommend great caution in making policy decisions involving oil and the marine environment."

U.S. officials already have announced they will increase sharply the leasing of offshore oil lands in 1975. Meanwhile, oil shipments by overseas tankers continue on the upswing — increasing the dangers of serious spills.

The 114-page report, "Oil Spills and the Marine Environment," marks the latest in a series of papers being released by the Ford Foundation's energy policy project, headed by S. David Freeman.

The writers urge a two-phase approach to oil pollution.

Far more research is needed, they say, into the effects of pollution on birds, mammals, fishes, plankton, wetlands, seabed organisms, and other systems.

Much of this research, they indicate, should be conducted at government expense to assure public access to the findings and to guide policymakers in decisions for future development.

Secondly, they should be a broad program of research to reduce the number and size of spills, and to improve clean-up techniques.

In 1969 and 1970, for example, there were an estimated 926 instances in which oil tankers went aground, or rammed or collided with other vessels.

The growing use of supertankers makes it even more urgent that improvements be made in navigation, including use of satellite navigation systems, and that methods be found to shorten the stopping distances of these ships, the authors say.

Another serious problem — well known to bathers near major oil ports — involves oily ballast discharges from seagoing tankers.

After a tanker unloads its cargo, it partially fills its oil tanks with seawater to provide better stability for the trip back to its home port. Upon reaching that port, the seawater, contaminated with some residual oil from the tanks, is pumped overboard. The oil often finds its way to nearby wetlands, bays, and beaches.

Perhaps the greatest challenges, though, are to understand the effects of oil on the environment. The authors wonder openly whether "political and economic pressures" are responsible for "the continuing paucity of governmental research funds."

The literature, for example, is only "scant" on sublethal effects of oil — yet the limited studies which are available indicate that "persistent contamination may have grace, if yet undocumented, consequences."

Crude oil in concentrations as low as 20 to 40 parts per billion have "caused modifications of feeding behavior in lobsters," the authors observe.

Each year, the study observes, some one to 10 million metric tons of oil are spilled or dumped or leaked into the oceans. Won't this certainly cause some serious effect? critic have asked.

Neither side has won the arguments over oil pollution. The authors are urging the U.S. to do its best to get the facts together so the public, as well as its leaders, can make the best possible decisions.

HER NEXT CAREER?

Learning, Teaching Photo Skills Prove Enthralling

By PAT BALMES

Sandy Steinman of Ross is on her way toward a career in photography through teaching or gallery shows or books.

Wife of a pediatrician and mother of three teen-agers, Mrs. Paul Steinman will be a teaching-assistant in a College of Marin photography class this fall. Her credentials are three years of intensive study with several photography instructors.

"I am, more or less I guess, preparing for a career. The children will soon be ready to leave. I have a strong interest; I am lucky," said Mrs. Steinman.

This week she took a recess from Timo Pajunen's three-week 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. photography course at College of Marin to go home for an interview about her work.

"Three of us use this little darkroom," she said opening the door of a large closet. Her husband and second son, Eric, 17, were the family's first photographers.

Photography did not interest her until she found how easy it is. Like cooking, you do not have to know what is in baking powder, to make things rise, she said.

"DON TATUM made it so simple that by the second lesson we were all printing pictures. To me it was something magical that appeared in the developer. I was startled, it was so easy," said Mrs. Steinman.

She expects to feel comfortable teaching in the darkroom, part of her College of Marin job, where she will both lecture and assist students with developing and printing, she said.

"I like to work with other people. I like hearing breathing in the darkroom. I like immediate feedback on my work," said Mrs. Steinman, who figures it will take four more years of study to become expert.

She reckons that her teaching-assistant responsibilities will be time consuming — developing, spotting to improve prints and mounting, but her salary will pay for her paper and chemicals. Teaching will make her a better photographer, she believes.

"I really have enjoyed seeing your people's excitement when they discover photography," she said.

Sitting down at her dining room table, the photographer showed photographs she took in 1973 on a trip to Mexico. The series is a documentation of the way of life of the Mexican Indians.

"I had been told the Indians would be shy and suspicious and would leave. But if I were in the market place for awhile, they would know I was friendly," she said, shuffling through the images of Mexican villagers.

THE PHOTOGRAPHS generate intense feelings, the result of Mrs. Steinman's understanding of the Indians and their way of life. Interested in anthropology and sociology, she is a graduate of Boston University in Spanish, French and Latin American regional studies.

A person of many interests, she has been taking classes ever since, many in education.

She is a member of League of Women Voters, Ross Valley Camera Club and has served on various Parent-Teacher Club projects including Redwood High School's task force to examine where the school was succeeding and where it needed improvement.

Mrs. Steinman is a member of Sight and Insight Gallery in San Francisco, where Mill Valley artist Ann O'Hanlon's students exhibit their work and attend and conduct workshops.

Mrs. Steinman first became hooked on photography in an art class when she recognized it as a way to express perceptions. Photography is an instant story told, she believes. What you say photographically has more impact than speaking and writing, to some people.

To her photography is an art form; she studies photographs from books and goes to galleries and museums.

She began taking instruction in the now closed Tintype Photo Gallery in Tiburon with instructor Don Tatum.

"DON SHOWED us how to do it; without telling us about the process, he just showed us how to get the print. It was enough to interest us, but we did not learn about what we were doing. We all became excited that we could enlarge and get prints," she said.

Mrs. Steinman wanted to learn more about photography's chemistry. She was curious about what makes film sensitive, the developer work and the stages which make a photograph.

She rented darkroom space at "Let-A-Dark" in San Rafael, where photographers were working at a nearly professional level, she said.

She began attending the College of Marin to work out difficulties she was experiencing with her photos. Instructor Steve D'Accardo saw her working on her Mexican series and became enthusiastic. He told her she should learn about photography's technicalities so she would have complete control of the process.

She later studied there with Tom Johnson, for whom she will work this fall.

"Photographs always are selfportraits. Through a group of photos you can often know the photographer," she said.

Seeing photographs by Joanne Leonard of San Francisco made Sandy Steinman feel she already knew the photographer, whom she later met at a lecture.

ONE OF MRS. Steinman's heroines in photography, the late Dorothea Lange, who was a Farm Security Administration photographer in the 1930s, captured the stance of farmers, their clothes and attitudes, she said. The Lange photographs stop the action in time so it can be studied.

Mrs. Steinman has memorized the poem by Francis Bacon which Dorothea Lange had pinned to her darkroom wall:

"The contemplation of things as they are/ without error or confusion/ without substitution or imposture/ is by far a nobler thing/ than a whole harvest of invention," she recited.

DEEPLY INTERESTED in sociology and anthropology, photographer Sandy Steinman believes that a statement of perceptions can better be made by a series of photographs instead of just one. This portrait of an old woman is from the group she took in Mexican villages in 1973. Mrs. Steinman is a graduate of Boston University in Spanish, French and Latin American regional studies.

MRS. PAUL Steinman takes a light meter reading in her garden in Ross, but her major work in photography is documenting a people's way of life with a picture series. The pediatrician's wife and mother of three teen-agers will be a teaching-assistant in a College of Marin photography class this fall. (Photo by Alfred Arn)

Girl Worried By Dad's Trysts Wants To Help Her Mother

RAP:

I can't believe I'm writing for help, but I've nowhere else to turn.

You see, I just overheard my father's phone call, and now I know he's having another affair. For a long while now we've been getting calls that seem to disconnect, and since that was what happened before, I had strong suspicions.

My father's first affair was with the woman next door. He even had the nerve to bring her here, when he thought we were asleep, and Mom was out working on her night job — in Mom's own bed — and I lay awake and listened to them laughing, etc.

I don't know how many affairs Dad has had since, but I heard him make a date "at the usual place, honey," and then he left, all dressed up and smelling like shave lotion, saying he'd be home around midnight. (Mom gets home from her job around 1 a.m.)

Helen and Sue, Mom is the greatest person on earth. She can do anything in the world but lose weight, and that is all that seems to matter to my stupid father. He's constantly making mean remarks about her figure, while completely overlooking all the fantastic things about her. He's mean in almost every way — we're more like master and slave than father and daughter. I don't see how Mom stands his cruelty and bitching, but she just takes it.

I couldn't hurt her by telling her about the new affair and I can't talk to my father. He'd probably attack me or something, as he's got a temper you wouldn't believe. I don't see how Mom could love him, but she's too good a Christian to think of divorce.

What's the solution, or is there one? — ME

ME:

Talk to your mother "woman to woman" about her marriage. Let her know you kids are on her side — and Christianity doens't mean martyrdom!

If your father is as mean as he comes through in your letter, maybe your Mom just needs encouragement to stand up and fight. Show her she deserves much more than a husband who treats her like dirt. — SUE

DEAR ME:

You say you couldn't hurt your mother by telling her about the affair, but it seems to me you're hurting her more by staying quiet. Perhaps she needs this final blow to prove that something MUST change or her marriage isn't worth saving. — HELEN

P.S. This talk should include a discussion about weight. Could be she'll start shedding pounds, as her frustrations lessen. — H.

PERSONAL TO "WANTING TO HELP THEM": You say your in-laws never miss our column, you want them to read your complaints so they'll "shape up," and you insist on no changes in your letter! No way! Advertising people's faults on a national billboard (in your case we'd say it's equal parts "bull" and "bile") won't bring about change — except for the worse.

Battle if you must, but include us out. — HELEN AND SUE

RAP:

My girlfriend and I were sitting on her couch, and I had my arm around her when her mother walked in the room. It wasn't a heavy scene. Really.

But her mother won't let my girl go with me anymore. Thinks I'm a sex fiend. Please make her see that I'm — NOT. NOT:

Frightened mothers don't persuade easily, but here goes:

Look, Mothers of Girls, if you can honestly say you never let a boy hug or kiss you, when YOU were teenaged, your "shock" might make more sense.

Since most of you can't, then please remember that your daughter isn't any more of a pushover than you were ... and if THAT gets you worried, well, shame on you! — HELEN

Gasoline Siphon An Easy Road To Deadly Mishaps

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — To would be gasoline siphoners, the word is don't.

Medical experts say even a small amount of gasoline swallowed or inhaled can make a person very ill. In some cases, it can be fatal.

Also, the slightest spark or flame — such as a water heater pilot light in a garage — can trigger an explosion.

If a person must transfer gas from one car to another in an emergency, it is recommended that it be done in a well ventilated area, away from any flame or electrical device.

A final word: Use a mechanical siphon, never your mouth.

To Freeze Corn, Begin By Blanching

To prepare corn for freezing, blanch ears first in boiling water for four minutes. Place ears in ice water for same length of time before you cut kernels from cob and package them.

The blancher should contain enough water so that it does not stop boiling when the vegetable is added.

Berry Freezing

To prepare berries for freezing, swish them gently in lots of ice cold water, lift them out, pat dry and freeze in a single layer on shallow trays. When they are solid, transfer them to an airtight container.

Johnson's Red Barn FURNITURE

Her Title Not Window Dressing

BEAVERTON, Ore. (UPI) — The customer entering the service department at Carmichael Oldsmobile-American is likely to be greeted by an attractive dark-haired woman whose name tag on the tunic of her trim pants suit bears the designation "service adviser."

Neither Lee Kilgore nor the title is window dressing. She is what is known in the trade as a "service writer."

She finds out from the customer what his car's problem is, schedules the work and assigns one of the six mechanics to handle it.

A graduate of the General Motors Corp. mechanics course, she knows what she's doing.

"I DIDN'T take the transmission course, but I did almost everything else," she said. When the shop is rushed she makes a few minor repairs — "like changing a headlight" — herself.

She didn't get into the job because of any special mechanical bent. "Having been in the auto business for a number of years helped though," she said.

She had been an office manager and was in the lease and rental section of another auto agency when she was offered the job at Carmichael.

"I had mentioned casually I was looking for another job and there had been talk of getting women into service department," Ms. Kilgore said. "I took the mechanics' course because I thought it would be helpful for the job." It has been.

The mechanics at first spent some time testing her knowledge and authority in the department. That didn't last long, however.

She is quick to defend mechanics against charges that they are biased against women customers. "The problem is," she said, "most women don't know enough about their cars to be specific about their trouble when they come in.

"THAT MEANS the mechanic has to spend more time locating the problem. Often he'll have to road test the car just to find a fairly simple problem — and that's time he doesn't get paid for."

She explained that each type of job has a standard time allowed for it and therefore a standard labor charge. If the mechanic has to spend extra time locating the problem he loses money on that job.

"I'd like to see mechanics courses for women — and for men, too — to teach them how the engine in their car operates," Ms. Kilgore said.

She was the only woman in her class at General Motors and women in service departments remain a rarity.

She sees no reason that should be true. "I really like it," she said. 'There is plenty of variety.

"I've learned more here about how to deal with people who are really up tight than I — ever did before."

Floral Economy

To stretch flowers for a dinner party, alternate slim vases of gladioli with tall candles in a color matching the glads. This arrangement will add a festive air to the table, and although it breaks the rule about the height of flowers for the table, the slender silhouettes will not interfere with guests views.

'Daisy Miller' Bogdanovich's Bag

By DAVID STERRITT
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

The new "Daisy Miller" comes as a surprise, because costume movies are considered bad form nowadays — another casualty of our casual age.

Gone is the era when a good picture meant Paul Muni all got up as Zola, Juarez, or at the very least Louis Pasteur.

Moviegoers now prefer salty naturalism to decked-out dramatics, just as pop-music fans choose dungareed guitarists over morning-coated violinists.

Like Daisy Miller's coquettishness 100 years ago, the urge to make costume drama seems a mite suspicious these days. In polite (celluloid) society, it's just not done.

There are exceptions to this norm, of course. It's all right to make a costume picture if the subject is Lord Nelson, or Napoleon, or a king of some sort. It's also all right if the director has already established himself as hip, cinematically suave, and up on all the latest trends. His costume movie will then seem a daring step forward, or at worst a bold step sideways.

So it is with the director of "Daisy Miller" — young, classy, super successful Peter Bogdanovich. It seemed inevitable that he would hit the costume route sooner or later, since his obvious goal is to become a filmmaker who's tried everything: suspense drama ("Targets"), nostalgia ("The Last Picture Show"), screwball comedy ("What's Up, Doc?"), period comedy-drama ("Paper Moon"), documentary ("Directed by John Ford"). Could "Daisy" and her 19th Century frippery have been far behind? Not a chance.

Bogdanovich can haul out the costumes any time he wants, for my money. His dapper "Daisy,' bustles and all, is a delight. Despite her outrageously flirtatious ways, "Daisy" carries a G (general-audience) rating that's both appropriate and welcome in a decade starved for old-fashioned movie entertainment.

Bogdanovich not only tries everything, he also makes everything work. True, some critics have rightly faulted "Doc" and "Moon" as weaker imitations of Howard Hawks and John Ford classics.

"Daisy Miller" too has bumpy and gimmicky moments. But such flaws seem less-than-fatal within the sharp, slick, gorgeously gift-wrapped packages that this fine director is so apt at assembling.

The Bogdanovich bandwagon just keeps on rolling along, and "Daisy" makes a handsome new addition, costumes notwithstanding.

Of course, the filmmaker had more than a little help in piecing "Daisy Miller" together.

Much of this aid comes from Henry James, whose original short novel makes excellent fodder for movie adaptation, with its quiet narrative filtered through the mind of an articulate and imagery conscious narrator.

Screenwriter Frederick Raphael has wisely tampered little with the story and dialogue, thus providing Bogdanovich with a delightfully Jamesian starting point.

More help comes from the delicious locations where James set the story, among them Switzerland's Vevay and the picturesque Chateau de Chillon. Of these places Lord Byron once wrote that he would "say little; because all I could say must fall short of the impressions they stamp." Bogdanovich, of course, doesn't have to say anything at all. He lets his cameras do the rhapsodizing, roaming through beauty after beauty to powerful visual effect.

Unfortunately, Bogdanovich doesn't get much help from one crucial source — the star of his movie. Cybill Shepherd served him gracefully in "The Last Picture Show," but she just doesn't make it as Daisy — the heroine's tongue-tripping lines sound strained and awkward from Miss Shepherd's lips, which weakens many important scenes.

Yet its' hard to fault Barry Brown as the narrator-character, even when Bogdanovich elicits too much hamminess from him. Supporting players Mildred Natwick, Eileen Brennan, and Duilio Del Prete are likewise superb, and I still haven't gotten over Cloris Leachman's brilliant performance as Daisy's frizzy-haired mama.

Bogdanovich's latest is not a perfect picture, by any means. Some transition scenes are awkward, some emotional episodes seem too cool and calculated. The tragic climax suffers particularly. In James it was understated and devastating; in Bogdanovich it's overphotographed and tricky feeling.

But the director has impressively interpreted the essence of James's work, and the interpretation remains consistent from first shot to last. Not by any chance does the film open with starkly geometrical images of a high-society hotel. Daisy's tragedy arises from an inability to mesh with the social geometry of a rigid era, a situation which Bogdanovich renders plain through a poignant visual scheme that makes even a disappointing lead performance seem not very important. Which is an impressive feat indeed.

COSTUME PIECE — Director Peter Bogdanovich makes it with a costume period piece in the film version of Henry James' "Daisy Miller," but Cybill Shepherd doesn't quite pull it off. But the other plays are good.

War Protester Awaiting Prison—Withheld Tax

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Sixty-three-year-old Martha Tranquilli's desire for peace is sending her to prison.

She sits at home, awaiting each day's mail which could bring her notice of when she will begin a nine-month prison sentence for tax fraud.

She refused to pay the part of her 1971 and 1972 federal income taxes which she said went to support the war in Southeast Asia.

"I just felt that I wasn't being heard, that none of us were being heard, and if we were, we were being ignored," Mrs. Tranquilli said.

"So I wrote to Nixon and told him if the war didn't end by December 1969, I would be forced to withhold the monies that went to the Pentagon to support the war."

The nurse's last legal attempt to overturn her conviction failed in June when the U.S. Supreme Court refused to hear her case. Any day, she expects to receive the notification that will put her behind bars.

Although Mrs. Tranquilli said she doesn't want to go to jail, she said yesterday she would withhold her taxes now if she had any to pay. She is receiving Social Security currently and not looking for work because of the prison term hanging over her head.

Mrs. Tranquilli said this year's largest U.S. military budget "is causing inflation and hunger not only here but around the world."

She has been a peace activist since the U.S. dropped the atomic bomb on Japan.

"I've never forgiven the country for that," she said.

Mrs. Tranquilli was tried in Greenville, Miss., in 1973. She had worked a nursing supervisor in the southern state until moving here in April to live with her son, Vincent.

Nevadans To View Mass Transit Need

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — A Seattle firm has been hired to study whether some form of mass transportation system is needed in rural Nevada.

State Planning Coordinator Bruce Arkell said yesterday the study by Stephens, Thompson and Runyan would be paid for with a $20,000 federal grant.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Bang the Drums Slowly" — A bumbling baseball catcher is a victim of Hodgkin's disease. His teammates try to conceal his illness from the manager. Some rough language.

"Daisy Miller" — the changes in moral standards since the late 19th Century are clearly shown in this study of Henry James novel about a spirited American girl traveling in Europe. Good cast, beautiful photography.

"Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry" — Racing driver robs to buy a super car. Ensuing chase is plot. Fast action, plenty of violence. (Boxoffice Magazine)

"Last American Hero" — Based on life of a real stock car driver. Film conveys positive family relationships. Cursing, sex scenes.

"Let the Good Times Roll" — A rock 'n' roll revival of the '70s is presented in concert by the stars who made the songs famous. Stars are shown as they were in the mid '50s.

"Mame" — Eye-dazzling musical production tells the story of an orphan boy who goes to live with his zany socialite Auntie Mame. Film lavishly mounted, some cursing and sexual jokes.

"Sleeper" — Sophisticated comedy, computerized world of 2173 provides Woody Allen with hilarious opportunities. Sexual references.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Save the Tiger" — A grim but thought-provoking picture of success and its pressures. A businessman commits a felony in order to stay in business. Cursing.

"Serpico" — A true story of a one-man war against corruption in New York City. Film has sex, cursing and violence but also warmth and humor.

"The Sting" — A pair of cool 1930s con men set out to ruin a powerful Chicago racketeer. Violence, cursing but entertaining for the mature.

Democrat Is Victor For Senate Seat

VENTURA (UPI) — Omer Rains, a liberal Democrat who emphasized a need for political reform in the wake of Watergate, has captured a short-term state Senate seat and will run again in November for a full term.

Rains, 32, a Ventura attorney and former head of the Ventura city Planning Commission, soundly whipped Republican Assemblyman Don MacGillivray, 54, in Tuesday's special election.

Rains got 55,192 votes or 58.9 per cent against 38,662 or 41.1 per cent on the basis of returns from all 694 precincts involved in Ventura and Santa Barbara counties.

The victory gives the Democrats a 22-18 edge in the Senate.

The special election was to fill a seat vacated by Republican Robert Lagomarsino who was elected to Congress.

Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., Democratic candidate for governor, and State Controller Houston Flournoy, the Republican nominee, campaigned door-to-door in the 24th district to try to drum up voter interest Tuesday.

Despite their efforts and the presence of hundreds of volunteer party workers, the turnout was light — 34 per cent in Santa Barbara County and 26.3 per cent in Ventura.

Fire Damage Set At $400,000

SOUTH EL MONTE (UPI) — Two separate fires in Los Angeles County —one at a firm that makes traffic signals and another at a company that produces plaster statues — caused combined damages estimated at nearly $400,000 last night.

The worst blaze destroyed Traffic Signal Manufacturing Co., Inc. here, causing losses estimated at $250,000. The blaze destroyed numerous signals, two cars, wiring equipment and spare parts.

Eight county fire units controlled the blaze in 45 minutes, but they were hampered in their battle when a power line fell on a chain link fence surrounding the building, charging the area with electricity.

Friends Say March Now Recovering

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Actor Frederic March, 76, is recovering from an undisclosed serious ailment in Good Samaritan Hospital, associates revealed yesterday.

Friends said March has been hospitalized for three weeks and is expected to soon be released.

Inflation Key Issue In Canadian Election

OTTAWA (UPI) — Canada's election campaign went into the final stretch this week with inflation the key issue and little indication of how voters will react to it.

Prices in Canada are higher now than at any time since the Korean War boom 22 years ago.

The country's 30th general election is set for Monday. But voter turnout is expected to be smaller than usual because the election is being held during the summer when many Canadians will be on vacation.

Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau's Liberal Party, toppled from power on the inflation issue two months ago, was campaigning hard to remain in power and running on his record.

Although still not recapturing the momentum that gave him a majority government in 1968, Trudeau was hitting harder than he did in the 1972 election which left him with only a minority administration.

Despite an annual inflation rate of more than 10 per cent, the Liberals are standing on their record, which includes budget promises of tax relief for low-income earners and heavier tax bites on big business. Trudeau also has promised measures to improve urban living, such as a government-run interurban rail service.

Robert Stanfield's Progressive Conservatives, hungry for power after 11 years as the official opposition party and a near win in 1972, are attacking the cost of living issue with promises of wage and price freeze followed by more flexible controls for a period of up to two years.

Third party lead David Lewis of the socialist New Democratic Party, instrumental in toppling the Trudeau government May 8 after 18 months of supporting the Liberals, claims neither they nor the Conservatives are equipped to handle inflation. Lewis calls the Conservative anti-inflation program a punishment for low income earners, not a program.

Lewis wants a national prices control board but no controls on wages. He would cover key commodities with a two-price system which entails one price for export and one for the domestic market, such as Canada now has for oil.

Trudeau constantly points out that wage and price freezes did not work in Britain or the United States and says it will not work in Canada, mainly because a hefty one-third of Canada's food comes from outside the country.

Stanfield has failed to explain to the satisfaction of some legal experts just how he plans to put a wage and price freeze into effect and exactly who it will affect.

According to law, such action is a function of the individual provinces, but Stanfield believes he can invoke laws declaring a state of emergency that would give him powers to enact such legislation. But legal circles are doubtful.

Although basically a provincial Quebec movement, Real Couette's conservative Social Credit Party, with 15 seats in the last parliament, just could supplant the NDP in the next election as the party holding the balance of power if another minority government is elected —Liberal or Conservative.

When Parliament was dissolved in May, Trudeau's Liberals held 109 seats in the House of Commons, the Conservatives 106, the NDP 31, Social Credit 15, and independents one, for a total of 262 seats. Two of the 264 seats were vacant.

Having run almost neck and neck in the October 1972 election, the Liberals and Conservatives are fighting the same close battle this year. The winner will need 132 seats to form a majority government.

To remain in power, Trudeau faces a two-way problem: holding his position in the east, where the traditional seat of Liberal power has been in Quebec province and winning substantial new support in the crucial industrial area around Toronto in southern Ontario. An added bonus would be making some inroads into the solidly Conservative west.

A nationwide public opinion poll taken June 15 and released June 22 showed voters might maintain almost the same balance of power in the House of Commons. But some hope was held out for Trudeau in the form of a slight gain for the Liberals in popular votes.

A pre-election survey region by region indicated that although the Conservatives could gain more seats in the already heavily Conservative west, the Liberals stood to pick up more seats in their Quebec stronghold.

It also showed the Liberals could possibly win back ground in Ontario, which swung heavily Conservative in 1972 and almost put the Conservatives into power. Ontario, with 88 seats, elects nearly one-third of the House of Commons.

Bachelorhood and the aura of glamor that shot him to power in 1968 as a glamour candidate has faded for Trudeau. But there is a different charm about Trudeau now despite the fact he is 54 and sports a bald spot on the back of his head.

Since that early victory, Trudeau married young and attractive Margaret Sinclair of Vancouver in the heady days of the early 70s. The auburnhaired 25-year-old who put an end to the long and colorful bachelorhood of one of the world's best known swingers quickly changed the aura at 24 Sussex Drive, the Prime Minister's residence in Ottawa, and now helps Trudeau campaign.

The son of a wealthy Montreal family became the father of two sons, both born on Christmas days.

Stanfield, a sincere and witty man at the age of 60, also came from a wealthy Nova Scotia family that made its money in manufacturing underwear, an origin that has caused many jokes.

David Lewis, leader of the new Democrats, was born June 23, 1909, in Poland. When he celebrated his 65th birthday with champagne aboard his aircraft "Daisy" in the air over Canada on the campaign trail, he was bubbling with his usual enthusiasm for electioneering.

Speaking no English when he arrived in Canada as an 11-year-old immigrant with his parents in 1921, Lewis adjusted quickly, graduating from Montreal's McGill University and winning a Rhodes scholarship.

'COLLEGE FOR KIDS'

An Expanded Program

By MARC LITTMAN

Alan Pabst, an 8-year-old San Rafael boy with a penchant for working with clay, never had much of an opportunity to develop his interest in ceramics at Glenwood School.

So he decided to learn the basics of the potter's trade at college this summer.

During the past two weeks, Alan has given vent to his love of modeling in clay in an isolated bungalow on the College of Marin campus. He and 14 other youngsters, aged 5 to 9, have fashioned bowls, wind chimes, banks, sculptures and other works under the tutelage of Ann Jack, ceramics instructor at the college.

In another part of the campus, 12-year-old Michael Perani has been filming a profusion of summer flowers. Later, other youths will provide a musical sound track for his film.

Still other youths, aged 5 to 16, can be seen scurrying about the expansive campus engaged in a variety of activities. Some are testing complicated video equipment, others are programming computers, constructing burglar alarms, peering through microscopes at single cell organisms or following stories as they reel through speed reading machines at speeds up to 1,000 words a minute.

It's all part of the College of Marin's year-round program for gifted children, "College for Kids," a project that this summer has lured 450 Marin youths from the playgrounds to the campus.

The project — which costs about $35,000 a year — is funded and sponsored by the college, 13 elementary school districts, the Marin County Board of Education and 18 private schools. A $16 registration fee for each summer class and $12 for each class the rest of the year also helps to defray costs.

Additionally, many parents serve as teacher aides to the instructors, most of whom are on the College of Marin staff.

Started last year at the urging of the Marin Association for Creative Children as a way to give creative children special attention, "College for Kids" has expanded from the initial six classes to 28 offerings this quarter.

Classes range from astronomy — in which students recently built balsa wood airplanes designed for space travel — to a class which gives children a chance to write and produce their own television scenarios.

In speed reading — one of the more popular courses — instructor Billie Hobart promised her students at the outset that they would double their reading speed and comprehension within four days.

She then told them to turn on the machines which pace their speed and the lines of a simple story raced past their bewildered faces at 500 words a minute. Soon they'd be reading at the speed, the teacher told the children.

Most of the students exchanged disbelieving glances with their neighbors, yet by the end of the two-and-a-half week course, many will be reading up to 900 words a minute with 90 to 100 per cent comprehension, according to the instructor. It was reported that last year, one girl expanded her reading speed to 1,800 words per minute.

"Only the limitations of the machine impeded her further progress," Mrs. Hobard said.

To supplement classroom instruction, field trips are aos scheduled to such sites as local television stations, computer centers, or scientific laboratories. A marine biology class, for instance, recently toured the Bolinas Marine Station.

Response to the program has been overwhelming, according to Jessie Harsham, community coordinator of the project, whose 6-year-old son is enrolled. Classes filled almost immediately, she added.

"College for Kids" will continue in the fall with 15 classes. There will be more emphasis on the arts than in the past, according to Dr. Jared B. Sharon, director of the program and an assistant dean of instruction at College of Marin. He expects that "College for Kids" will attract 1,200 pupils next year.

EXPOSES LIFE — Craig Hanson, a director at Bolinas Marine Station shows a group of apparently fascinated youths the habitat of microscopic marine life. The youngsters are enrolled in a marine biology class at "College for Kids," the College of Marin's program for gifted children.

Kehoe New Shoreline Board Head

Kenneth V. Kehoe of Inverness has been elected president of the Shoreline Unified School District board succeeding N. Louise Passalacqua.

Roy Parks of Tomales was elected vice president and Mrs. Passalacqua was chosen board clerk at the annual organizational meeting Tuesday.

Edward Gilardi, a Tomales High School senior, was introduced as student representative to the board for the coming school year.

In other action, the board tentatively approved the existing teacher salary schedule, plus 5 per cent raises, and the existing salary schedule for nonteaching employees for 1974-75.

Meet-and-confer sessions on salaries aren't yet finished and salaries will be adjusted when negotiations are completed, according to Doris Chadwick, district secretary.

Sausalito Display To Curb Bus Runs

Sausalitos plan to restrict traffic during its fireworks display this evening will affect bus and ferry service.

An extra round trip has been scheduled for the ferry to handle crowds expected to visit Sausalito on the holiday. The extra run will depart from Sausalito at 9:15 p.m. and from San Francisco at 9:50 p.m.

The Route 20 bus between San Francisco and San Anselmo will bypass Sausalito on northbound runs starting with the 5:50 p.m. departure from San Franciscos Civic Center. Regular northbound service will resume through Sausalito with the 10:35 p.m. bus from the Civic Center.

Southbound service on Route 20 will be discontinued after the 5:29 p.m. departure from Sausalito, resuming at 10:20 p.m.

The Route 10 bus, which also serves Sausalito, will be on its regular holiday schedule.

Traffic into Sausalito will be restricted to residents from 6 to 9:30 p.m. on all streets into the city except Bridgeway.

Suit Is Settled By Thrifty Drug

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Thrifty Drug Stores Co., Inc. has agreed not to sell merchandise at a higher price than advertised under terms of a stipulated judgment reached in a false advertising suit.

The suit had claimed that Thrifty outlets sold "many items" for higher prices than the prices advertised on July, 12, 19 and 26 and Dec. 13, 1973.

Thrifty made no admission of wrong doing and paid no civil penalties, but did agree to pay $35,000 in state prosecutor's costs. The company also agreed to keep prices on advertised items in line with the amounts advertised.

Unit Joins In Fighting Forest Fire

A C-130 Hercules crew from the 452nd tactical airlift group at Hamilton Air Force Base, has flown the first Air Force Reserve fire-fighting mission.

Using a newly-developed modular airborne tanks carrying a fire retardant, the crew has been fighting a forest fire in the Guadalupe Mountains in New Mexico.

As of yesterday, the crew had flown five "missions" and dropped about 27,000 pounds of fire retardant in support of the U.S. Forest Service.

The crew had just returned to Hamilton Sunday after fire fighting training at Boise, Ida., when it got the call to help in New Mexico.

With the new fire fighting system, the C-130 aircraft performs as a chemical bomber against forest fires, dropping the retardant in the path of the advancing fire.

The crew consists of Capt. Ronald Stark of Petaluma, aircraft commander, William Whitaker of Novato, Pilot; T/Sgt. Kenneth McDaniel of Sonoma, flight engineer, Senior M/Sgt. Edward Miller of Novato and M/Sgt. Woodrow Wood of Rohnert Park, aircraft loadmasters.

SAVORING SWEET SOUNDS

A resident of Nazareth House in San Rafael smiles as she listens to a group of young musicians, including drummer Leonard Sperry, rehearsing for the Inverness Music Festival's Young Artists Awards Concert Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Marin Veteran's Memorial Auditorium. Competing for a $600 first prize donated by the Independent-Journal will be three finalists, trombonist Joe Alessi, cellist Jed Barahal and pianist Jeff Kahane. Two runner-up prizes of $200 each have been donated by Harry Connick and Andre Paris. The festival opens tomorrow at 8 p.m. with a harp recital in St. Columba's Church, Inverness.

$13 Million Bus, Ferry Grant Set

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — The federal government yesterday granted more than $13 million to the Golden Gate Bridge District to pay for expanded bus and ferry transit.

Rep. John L. Burton, D-Sixth District, announced the action by the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. The approval covered the full amount sought by the bridge district.

The new funds will pay 80 per cent of the cost of 32 additional commuter buses to be in service by October and of other bus and ferry facilities.

The latest federal money is on top of a $24.5 million grant made in 1971 to pay two thirds of the cost of getting the district into the bus and ferry business.

Total cost of the system of 220 buses, four ferries and related facilities now stands at just over $53 million. Of this amount, federal grants cover $37.5 million and district funds the remaining $15.5 million.

Mayor's Daughter To Be Arraigned

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Phyllis Bradley, 29, the youngest daughter of Mayor Tom Bradley, will be arraigned July 10 on charges of resisting arrest and assaulting police officers who had stopped her for a traffic violation last month.

Miss Bradley was named yesterday in a city attorney's complaint charging her with battery and resisting arrest.

The charges stemmed from an incident June 26 in which police stopped Miss Bradley near the Harbor Freeway and she refused to get out of her car for half an hour.

HERBERT W. KALMBACH
State court action

Kalmbach Is Temporarily Suspended

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The state Supreme Court yesterday ordered the temporary suspension of former White House adviser Herbert W. Kalmbach from the practice of law in California.

Kalmbach recently pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting in the unlawful influencing of an election and to promising an ambassadorship as consideration for a $100,000 political contribution.

He was sentenced concurrent 6-to-18 month prison terms and fined $10,000.

California law provides for suspension of attorneys convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude.

If and when Kalmbach's criminal conviction becomes final, the court would then request the state bar to hold a hearing to recommend whether he should be suspended from practice for a limited time or disbarred.

Today's interim suspension was effective until further order by the court.

Sex Films Banned From Drive-Ins

MODESTO (AP) — Stanislaus County supervisors have unanimously approved an ordinance banning sexually explicit films from drive-in theaters with screens visible outside the theater property.

The move came Tuesday after a petition bearing 2,000 signatures complained that sexually explicit films shown at McHenry's Twin Drive-In Theaters here are visible at a nearby children's park and in neighborhood backyards.

"It's an invasion of privacy of people that don't want to see them. We think it's in bad taste and should be stopped," said Dill Ulm, county supervisor.

Dist. Atty. Donald Stahl, who drafted the ordinance, said it would be the first of its type in the state.

Personnel Panel Postpones Meeting

The Marin County Schools Personnel Commission has postponed its July meeting from Monday to July 15 at 8 p.m. in the county superintendent of schools office.

Jean G. Knox, commission chairman, said the meeting was changed so that all applicants for county schools personnel director can be before the meeting.

ALMANAC

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Today is Thursday, July 4, the 185th day of 1974 with 180 to follow.

This is American Independence Day, its 198th anniversary. The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Jupiter and Saturn. The evening star is Mars.

American songwriter Stephen Foster was born July 4, 1826.

Also on this day in history:

In 1802, the U.S. Military Academy was opened at West Point with the arrival of 10 cadets.

In 1826, former presidents John Adams and Thomas Jefferson both died on the 50th anniversary of their signing of the Declaration of Independence.

In 1946, the Philippine Republic came into existence after 27 years of U.S. sovereignty.

In 1960, the U.S. flag officially grew to 50 stars after admission of Hawaii into the Union almost a year earlier.

A thought for the day: In the U.S. Declaration of Independence, July 4, 1776, Thomas Jefferson said: ". . . we hold these truths to be self-evident: that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness."

Sometimes A Signal Can Be Overused; Study This Hand

It isn't necessary to signal whenever you have a doubleton. The meaning of a high-low signal is "come ahead with this suit, partner." Use the signal only when you want your partner to continue the suit.

EAST'S SIGNAL

West opened the king of diamonds, and East automatically began a signal by playing the ten. West naturally continued with the ace of diamonds, noting that East completed the high-low by playing the deuce of diamonds.

Obeying orders, West led another diamond, and declarer ruffed in dummy with the ace of trumps. After all, South had seen the signal too; he saw no sense in ruffing low and allowing East to overruff.

Declarer continued with the king of trumps and two more trumps. Then he led the nine of clubs for a finesse. East could get the king of clubs, but South easily discarded the losing spade on one of dummy's clubs.

Since East didn't really want a diamond continuation he should have used a discouraging signal by playing the deuce of diamonds at the first trick.

West would automatically switch to a spade, and East would get both of the black kings as well as his partner's two diamond tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one club, and the next player bids one spade.

You hold:
♠ - 6 4
♥ - Q J 10 9 4 3
♦ - Q J 6
♣ - 9 4

What do you say?

ANSWER: Pass.

If the hand has any future for your side, you will get another chance to bid. If you bid at this stage you will promise more in high cards than you can deliver.

Prizes Set For Fiddle Contest

Juvenile Court Judge Unhappy

NEW YORK (AP) — After six months on the bench, Simeon Golar, former New York City commissioner of human rights, says the family court is "an absurd process" with a noble mission it can no longer fulfill.

He told a symposium here that because of recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions, defense maneuvers and administrative procedures, tens of thousands of youngsters who reach juvenile court are neither punished nor rehabilitated but are in fact educated in disrespect and contempt for the law.

He recommended that "we start talking again about right and wrong and about accountability" and that "we acknowledge that punishment within limits can be appropriate."

End Of Year Registration To Continue

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — California car owners will continue to register their vehicles at the end of the year at least for 1975, state officials announced yesterday.

Previously, the Department of Motor Vehicles had planned to implement staggered, year-around registration in 1975 using a new computerized system which assigns specific renewal dates to individual vehicles.

Motor Vehicles Director Robert Cozens said the department will register at least 16 million vehicles at the end of the year.

The legislature refused last week to include in the state's $10.1 billion budget $2 million requested by the Reagan administration for further development of the computer center which was scheduled to process the "year around" registration.

The Reagan administration has said that the $40 million computer center is needed to eliminate "serious" law enforcement problems.

"When next year's renewal time approaches DMV will follow the same program that has proved successful for the past two years," Cozens said.

"Owners will be urged to register their vehicles by mail with the nearest DMV field office rather than by personal visit."

Motorcycles which are already on a year around renewal schedule will continue to be registered that way.

CHILDREN'S MATH PROGRAM — A new television series next winter, somewhat in the manner of "Sesame Street" will be aimed at combatting most Americans' weakness in mathematics. The show will lay heavy stress on reaching minorities.

NEXT CHILDREN'S SERIES

Show Plans To Fill Math Gap

By KENNETH G. GEHRET
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

NEWTON, MASS. — Public television's next big children's series will go after a major American weakness — mathematics.

"Most Americans are very poor at mathematics," explains Mitchell Lazarus of the series project staff. "At all levels of education and in all walks of life, there is room for a good deal of improvement."

The project staff plans an imaginative and appealing approach to the subject. Any resemblance to classroom teaching will be studiously avoided. There won't even be any of the usual sequence to the concepts presented. A child can tune in and see the third program first or miss every other week and still not be left behind in his understanding of what he sees. Each show will stand on its own.

To achieve this goal, the series will combine the educational impact of "Sesame Street" with the direct participation of children pioneered by "Zoom."

Like "Sesame Street," explains executive producer Christopher Sarson, who also directed "Zoom," "our films will go into the home and into schools. They will be directed to the same kind of audience. And they will be doing the same sort of job in exploring an uncharted area."

And as in "Zoom," he adds, "there will be a valid input from children. We must have a firm feel of the audience. It can't be an imposition by a large staff here in Newton."

The series of 65 half-hour films will be designed for children aged 8 through 11. Entertainment is viewed as critical in appealing to this age group, though without compromising the purpose of teaching. Despite a focus on black and Spanish-speaking children, program producers expect the series to draw a wide audience of white youngsters as well.

Materials are being prepared for use by viewers in conjunction with the TV shows.

The first 26 films are scheduled to go on the air next January, to be followed by 39 more during the 1975-76 school year. Public broadcasting stations across the U.S. are expected to carry the programs, in addition to other outlets.

Since the programs will be aimed primarily at minorities, Mr. Sarson and his colleagues will rely heavily on black subcontractors around the country to produce segments of film for the series. Ideas too will be tested in different locations before filming begins.

What will children learn from the films?

"The programs' objectives are somewhat different from those of mathematics education in most schools today," Dr. Lazarus answers.

"In general, we are less interested in teaching elaborate computational abilities and more concerned with developing a sense of how mathematics can reflect and represent aspects of the world at large.

"For example, numbers come from rulers, measuring tapes, clocks, calendars, scales, football fields, scoreboards, checkbooks, unit-pricing stickers, measuring cups, maps, timetables, catalogs.

"All of these and many more can provide raw material for problems that will make mathematics concrete and real to the student," he explains, "enabling him to see there is more to mathematics than arriving at the 'right answer,' that numbers can be used for drawing conclusions about reality."

One purpose in particular should find favor with teachers — that of changing students' attitudes toward math. "We want kids to turn to math with new insights," comments Leroy Colquitt, managing director of the project.

"Often they don't see the applicability of what they've learned. We hope to provide a context and give them the perspective that will make math more meaningful, hence more appealing to them."

Project heads hope to continue on beyond the 65 films now scheduled. They see these segments as an opportunity to demonstrate the advantages and success of this approach to teaching math concepts. If these turn out as well as they expect, the project is likely to be expanded, they say.

The Education Development Center, which is developing the series, was founded by Dr. Jerrold R. Zacharias, noted physicist of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Dr. Zacharias serves as project director of the math program, which is funded principally by the U.S. Office of Education.

The federal grant of more than $4 million has been supplemented by money from the Carnegie Corporation, the National Science Foundation, the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, the John and Mary Markle Foundation, and the JDR 3rd Fund.

Meat Grader Indictments Announced

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Five Department of Agriculture meat graders were indicted yesterday on charges of taking bribes of up to $300 a week in southern California to mislabel the meat they were inspecting.

In addition, William R. Walmsley, owner of a Los Angeles meat packing firm, was indicted on three counts of giving bribes to USDA meat graders to upgrade meat.

The indictments, returned by a federal grand jury in Los Angeles, were announced here by Att. Gen. William Saxbe.

The indicted meat graders — who are responsible for determining the quality or grade of meat sold by packing companies — included Joe Edmund Hurst, 27, Ontario, Calif.; Roy Iantis, 28, Ontario, Calif.' Jerry Malcolm, 31, Anaheim, Calif.' Roger Wood, 37, Anaheim, Calif.; and Harold Nightengale, 44, Westminister, Calif.

Hurst, Iantis and Malcolm were charged with six counts of bribery and total cash bribes ranging from $1,190, for Malcolm to $1,520 for Hurst. Wood was named in five bribery counts, while Nightengale was charged with two counts of taking bribes.

In addition to charges of receiving bribes from June 1972 to February 1974, Malcolm and Iantis were also charged with making false statements to the grand jury investigating the case.

Sammy Davis Jr. Voices Defense

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sammy Davis Jr. says he is not pampered and has worked very hard to achieve what he has in his life.

In a news conference at his Benedict Canyon home yesterday, Davis said published reports that he without reason walked out on a club date in Monaco last week were "lies."

He also took issue with Princess Grace who, when told of Davis' departure because of alleged snubs, reportedly said, "When people get that pampered, there's not much you can do."

"I hope to God," Davis said, "that none of their (Princess Grace and Prince Rainier) children have to pay the dues I've paid in my life."

Dolphins Have More To Lose In Football Strike

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a touch of levity in San Diego yesterday as the National Football League players marched on their first picket line but the situation is grim in Miami where some of the Dolphins are debating whether to cross the lines.

Ed Garvey, the executive director of the NFLPA, and about 50 players marched with picket lines and sweat shirts reading "no freedom, no football" in San Diego where the Chargers became the first team to open their camp for rookies.

Garvey quipped, "we won't be able to tell how effective our line was until we get a chance to study the films."

Bill Curry, the association president, chuckled, "we'll make adjustments at halftime."

Eugene Klein, the owner of the Chargers, joined in the jovial spirt of things but, noting the line was "rather ragamuffin," he added, "but you have to remember they haven't had any coaching or a chance to run through formations."

The actual picket line was merely symbolic because most of the Charger rookies had entered camp before yesterday—and the few rookies who hadn't entered camp showed no hesitation in crossing the line.

But in Miami, a debate is going on among the veterans that could play a key role in deciding how successful the strike is.

The Dolphin players are the only ones who have something substantial to lose by striking the exhibition season because they will get a regular season game salary for playing in the College All-Star game in Chicago on July 26.

And Jim Mandich yesterday became the third veteran—along with Jim Langer and Howard Twilley—to publicly suggest the Dolphins should play in that game.

In other exhibition games, the players get only a token amount around $300. But the pay for the All-Stary game for a player making $70,000 per year amounts to $5,000.

"I'm definitely coming to camp," Mandich said. "I assure you, I won't be there by myself." The Dolphin veterans are due to report July 14.

Noting these defections and other signs of wavering, Dolphins player representative Doug Swift scheduled a meeting Friday, two days prior to the opening of training camp for rookies.

"It'll be a key battleground," Swift said. "If the Dolphins don't hold the line, it could weaken our bargaining position."

Swift admitted the All-Star game has caused "some hedging" among the team veterans but said, "so far, no real friction has developed."

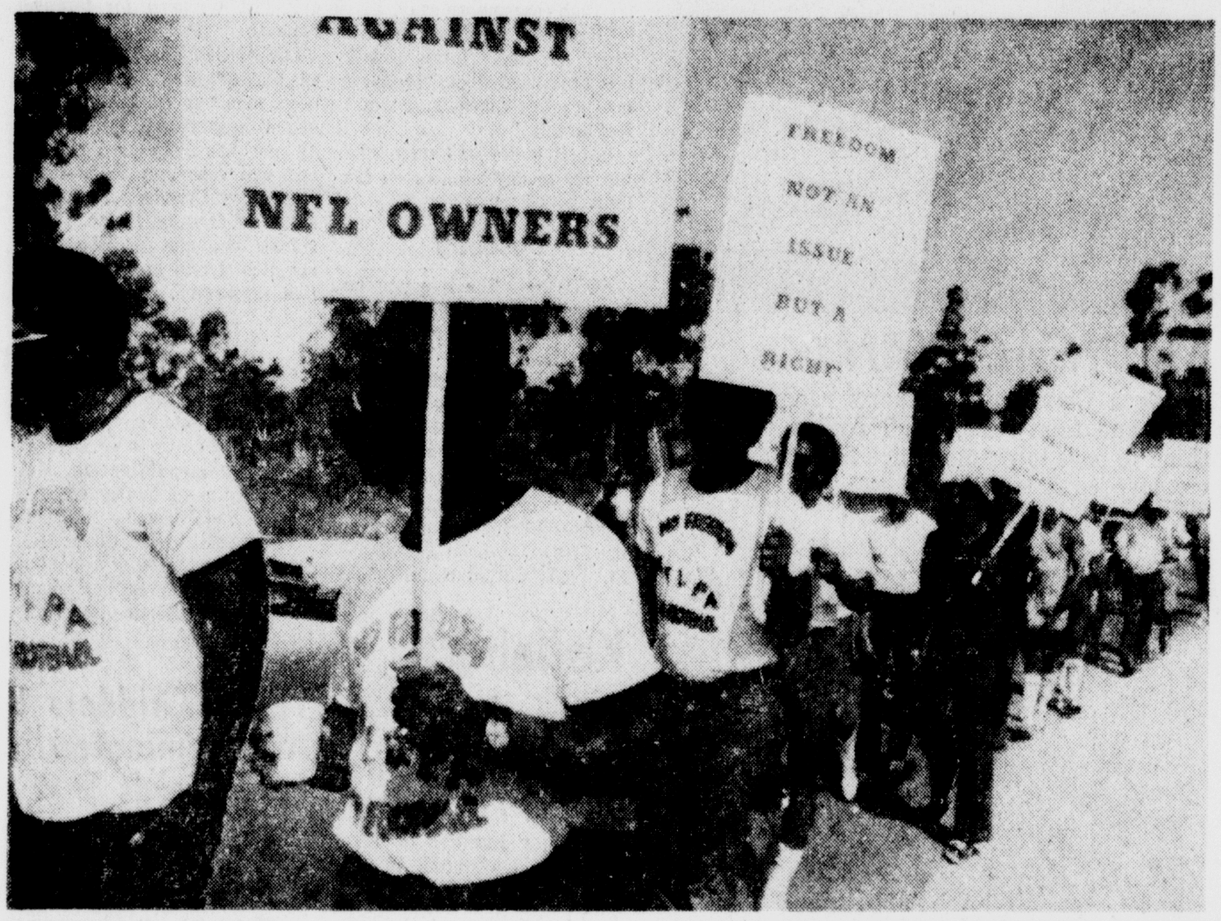
Because of his teammates, Mandich said he had to do a lot of thinking before taking his stand against the union.

"As a group, my teammates are open-minded," he said. "I'm sure there won't be any repercussions."

Mandich said, "There's a very good possibility I will resign from the union." John Hannah, a lineman with the New England Patriots, said he will cross the line but most veterans from the other team seem solidly behind the association — especially since most players think the training season is too long anyway.

Most veterans think they can wait until late August and still be ready for the opening of the regular season in mid-September. It's highly unlikely that the dispute won't be settled by the start of the regular season.

In another front Wednesday, the NFL Management Council filed an unfair labor charge against the players. The players filed one against the owners on Monday so the score is tied in that department.



FREEDOM MARCH — Members of the National Football League manned a picket line at the San Diego Chargers training camp yesterday. They wore shirts which proclaimed: "No Freedom, No Football.

Chris Evert One Of Few To Escape 'Upset Day'

She's Odds On Favorite To Win Wimbledon Title

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Chris Evert escaped.

But, she was one of the few that did yesterday as top seeds and defending champions were sent reeling in the Wimbledon championships.

The top-seeded woman and defending champion Billie Jean King was dethroned by Russia's Olga Morozova. Shortly afterwards, third-seeded Evonne Goolagong joined Billie Jean on the sidelines, a victim of fellow Australian Kerry Melville.

The men's play followed the same script with top-seeded John Newcombe and defending champion Jan Kodes falling by the wayside as three Americans gained berths in the semifinals.

That required a lot of overtime for one segment of the British work force —the bookmakers, who were forced to revise completely their odds.

They made second-seeded Chris, who meets sixth-seeded Kerry Melville of Australia today, an odds-on 4-5 to go on and win the biggest championship of her career. Miss Melville, who disposed of former titleholder Miss Goolagong, is rated 5-1.

The other semifinalists are Virginia Wade of Great Britain, the fifth seed, and Miss Morozova. The British girl is 7 to 2 and the Russian physical education teacher is 5 to 1.

Despite his startling upset of Newcombe, Australian Ken Rosewall, the ninth seed, is third in the betting at 4-1. His opponent, fourth-seeded Stan Smith of Sea Pines, S.C., is the betting favorite at 5-4.

But the 39-year-old Rosewall, a three-time runner-up in the only major tournament whose title has eluded him, will be the strong favorite of the fans. Even Smith said, "I would be rooting for him if I weren't playing him."

"I thought I could win but it's always a mistake to underestimate Ken," said Newcombe. "I think he can win the tournament and I hope he does."

The other men's semifinal match pairs Americans Jimmy Connors and Dick Stockton.

Stockton of Port Washington, N.Y., who disposed of 10th-seeded Alex Metreveli of Russia Wednesday, is 6-1. Connors of Belleville, Ill., and the tournament's third seed, is 9-4.

Connors wiped out defending champion Kodes in a three-hour five-setter yesterday.

The men's semifinalists are getting rest after four straight days of singles and will play again Friday.

FIRST WIN

Westrum Gets Call From Alvin

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Wes Westrum was sitting at his desk in the clubhouse accepting congratulations for his first victory after four losses as manager of the San Francisco Giants when the phone rang.

It was Alvin Dark, Westrum's old playing partner when both were with the Giants in the 1950s, adding his best wishes, and Wes was moved.

"Thank you, Alvin," Wes said into the receiver. "It was nice of you to call. Right now I feel like a million. This is a good club. We have a lot of talent, but we have to work hard to get it out.

"You have a pretty good club of your own," Westrum continued, referring to the defending world champion Oakland A's, whom Dark manages. "The best of luck to you, too, and thanks again for calling."

This was a few minutes after the Giants had beaten the San Diego Padres, 3-2, yesterday on Gary Matthews' 10th-inning leadoff homer to snap a fourgame losing streak. The victory also lifted the Giants, who have won only two of their last 12 starts, out of the National League West cellar, which they had occupied for exactly 17 hours.

"Maybe this game will give us the shot in the arm we need to get going," said Westrum.

Matthews' homer, his seventh of the year, gave him four hits for the game. It was a big day for him personally, but he looked at it more from the team's point of view.

"I'm glad I was able to do something," said the 1973 rookie of the year who has been struggling this season. "Winning the game means more to the team than it does to me. We've lost so many lately that it's hard to put into words what I feel. It's great and I hope it turns out to be the takeoff point. We're a good club and most of us are a little embarrassed at how we have been playing."

Randy Moffitt, with two innings of shutout relief, was the winner and now is 3-3.

Dutch, Germans In Finals

800 Million World Cup TV Viewers

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Holland and West Germany, conquerors respectively of Brazil and Poland, triumphantly won passage yesterday to Munich, there to contest the soccer championship of the world.

The game at the Olympic Stadium Sunday will be seen by some 800 million persons — more than have ever watched a single sporting event.

Holland earned its ticket by riding some of the roughest play in the 1974 World Cup and coming back to hit Brazil for two opportunist second-half goals by Johan Neeskens and the sport's superstar Johan Cruyff and a 2-0 victory.

West Germany, the long-standing favorite, splashed to a 1-0 victory in a sometimes farcical match on a waterlogged pitch with a well-taken 75th minute goal by Gerd ("The Bomber") Mueller.

It is Holland's first appearance in a World Cup final, but West Germany's second in the last three competitions.

British bookmakers gave the high-flying Dutchmen the edge, quoting them at 4-5.

Mario Zagalo, Brazil's manager, said, "Holland is the best team in the World Cup," but declined to predict the outcome of the final.

The night game in Dortmund was a bruising encounter and Cruyff said afterwards, "The Brazilians are used to winning and when the game turned sour on them, they resorted to violence."

Ten minutes from the end, referee Kurt Tschenscher of West Germany sent off Brazilian right fullback Luis Pereira for a hip-high tackle on Neeskens after which Neeskens himself limped off.

Earlier, in a remarkable incident Tschenscher did not see because it took place far from the ball, Brazilian defender Marinho chopped Neeskens with his left-hand and it was several minutes before the Dutchman could be brought round.

As the Brazilians began to go increasingly for the man instead of the ball, so their effectiveness waned and the early dangers they posed to the Dutch defense dwindled.

Zagalo blamed the referee for the rough play. "He started making mistakes, lost his head and lost control of the game".

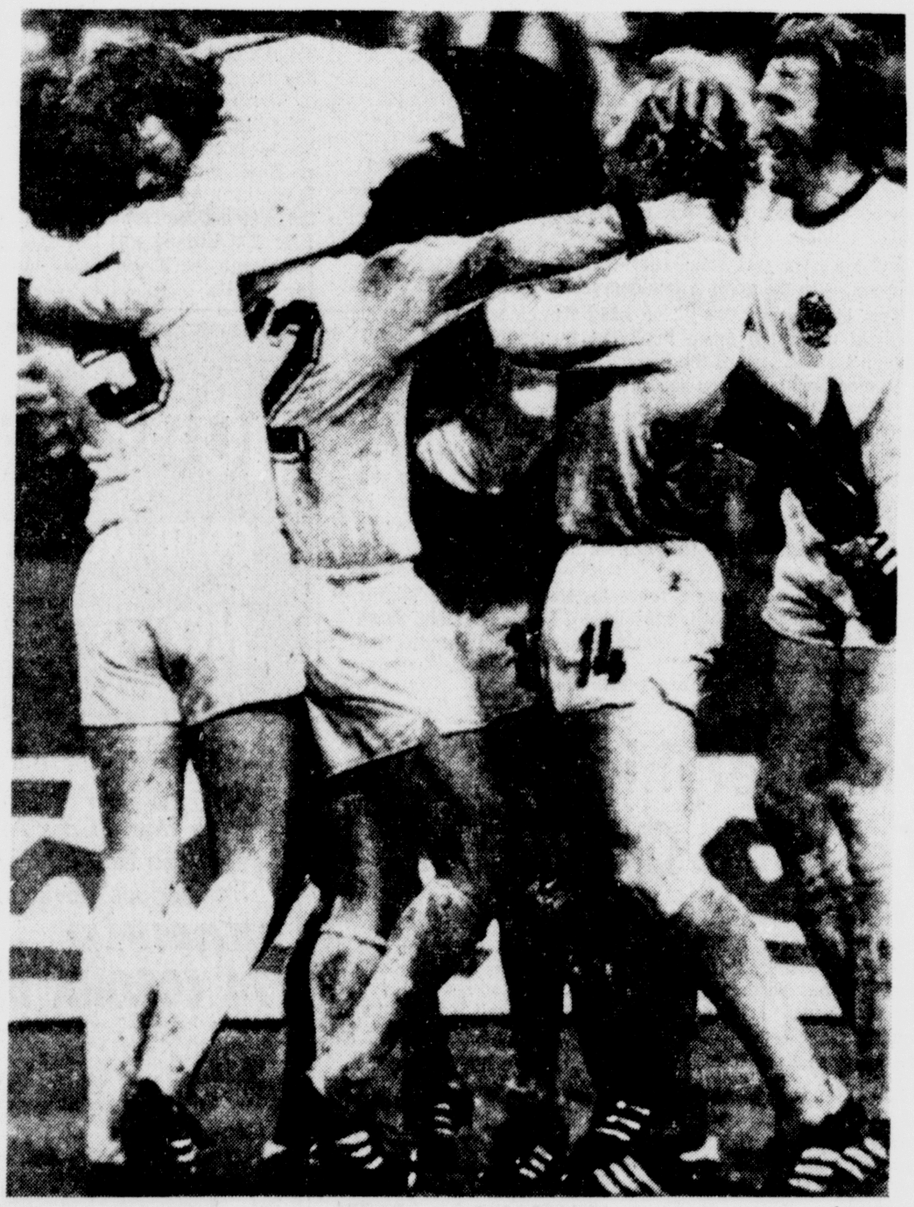
Dutch manager Rinus Michels said, "Brazil not only lost the game, but lost its honor."

In all, three Brazilians, including Pereira, were booked and two Dutchmen.

The Frankfurt game before a sell-out crowd started 30 minutes late after a torrential downpour spread lakes of rainwater over the pitch.

Ground staff in their bare feet and members of the fire brigade desperately swept water off the pitch, but the Poles and West Germans still had great difficulty in producing a semblance of football.

Passes got grounded in pools of water and players skidded 15 yards after a tackle.



HAPPINESS IS WINNING — Members of the West German soccer team whooped it up after their semi-final victory in the World Cup yesterday. They will meet the Dutch in Sunday's finals.

NO WILLIAMS MIRACLES

A's Beat Angels Again

ANAHEIM (UPI) — If Dick Williams is going to work any miracles with the California Angels, he's starting off as a mere mortal.

The Angels, one out away from their first victory under Williams, blew it last night and lost their third straight game to the Oakland A's.

Oakland, Williams' old club, rallied for two unearned runs in the top of the ninth with two outs to pull out a 3-2 victory.

It was California's 23rd loss in its last 31 games and the third in a row under Williams.

"No one hates to lose more than I do," Williams said. "That first one is sure hard to come by, though."

Losing pitcher Andy Hassler, who only gave up one earned run last night, must also be wondering what it takes to get a victory.

In 31 1-3 innings this season, the hardluck righthander has surrendered only five earned runs and his ERA is a stingy 1.44. He only has a 1-3 record to show for it, however.

California rallied for two runs in the bottom of the eighth to take a 2-1 lead and got to within an out of registering a victory when pinch-hitter Jesus Alou started the A's gift inning.

Alou rolled a ball over the mound, which Hassler couldn't get to because of his offbalance follow-through. Shortstop Dave Chalk got to it, but couldn't make a throw.

After pinch-runner Herb Washington took over for Alou, Bill North grounded to third baseman Bobby Valentine. But Valentine's throw to first sailed into the stands.

Bert Campaneris then followed with another infield grounder which nearly followed the same path as Alou's. Second baseman Sandy Alomar threw to the plate after Washington scored the tying run, trying to get the speedy North.

But catcher Ellie Rodriquez dropped the ball in a collision with North.

Oakland rookie starter Glenn Abbott, who also went all the way, got his second victory in three decisions in allowing the Angels only five hits.

Santa Clara Oarsmen Win In Henley

Combined AP & UPI

HENLEY-ON-THAMES, England — Santa Clara University got the United States off to a flying start at Henley Royal Regatta today with an all-the-way victory over England's Reading University in the Thames Challenge Cup for lightweight eights.

The red-and-white-shirted California crew burst into a one-length lead at the half-mile signal and never looked like it would be caught in the first-round battle along the mile, 550-yard River Thames course.

Among the first to greet the American crew as they came ashore was Mimi Sherman of Bakersfield, Calif. Miss Sherman has been coxswain for the Santa Clara eight for the past two years but was banned from breaking the men-only tradition here by the Henley stewards.

She watched the race from a specially reserved seat in the official launch which accompanied the boat. Mimi, 20, her hair tied with a bright red ribbon, hugged each member of the crew and said "that's wonderful."

Last year an eight from Santa Clara was beaten in the first round at Henley. But they made no mistake this time. Cruising over the finish line, the Californians won by an official margin of five lengths — in 7:38.

U.S. sculling champion Jim Dietz of New York rowed to a comfortable win to open his challenge for the Diamond Sculls individual title.

But to get to Sunday's final he has to defeat his Philadelphia-based arch-rival Sean Drea of Ireland, the reigning Henley champion, in Friday's second round.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Sailing Boom Still On Rise

The two-car family is one of the major contributors to the North American fuel shortage, but its not likely one can say the same thing about a two-BOAT family.

For its almost a certainty that the second boat will have sails.

The boom in sailing is a recreational phenomenon of the past five years, and the statistics indicate that its continuing. Undoubtedly its the result of the discovery that what used to be an expensive sport is now much cheaper — and just as exciting.

One reason for the change in attitude is the change in sailboats themselves. It used to be that owning a sailboat automatically meant joining a yacht club. Nowadays many sailboat enthusiasts have their own yacht club in their backyard and trailer their boats to any water they like.

Also, sailboats are now faster and more exciting to handle. They plane and skim over the water like power boats. They have simplified rigging that doesnt require a large crew to handle, and above all they are now made of sophisticated jet-age materials that make them cheaper and within the economic reach of more people. These materials also make the manufacturing easier and the maintenance effortless.

If you are as bored with power boats as many people are, the next logical step is to try sailing. You'll discover an exhilaration that power boating cant give and a sense of accomplishment that can be surpassed only by learning to fly.

That sailing is a lively topic is obvious from some of the questions we've been asked:

Q. Are sails made of synthetic materials worth the extra cost over cotton?

A. From a practical standpoint, yes. They can be stored wet and are mildew proof. Cotton or canvas must be dried carefully before being put away.

Q. Which is better for sails, Terylene or Dacron.

A. Its the same material. Terylene is the British name, fairly common in the U.S., because they have produced it just a little cheaper . . . so it was imported.

Q. Why are sails made of several pieces of material sewn together, instead of being in one piece?

A. Mainly its a question of shape of the sail. Also seams give strength at points of strain, and anyway, most fabrics arent made in such widths.

Q. What does "close-hauled" mean?

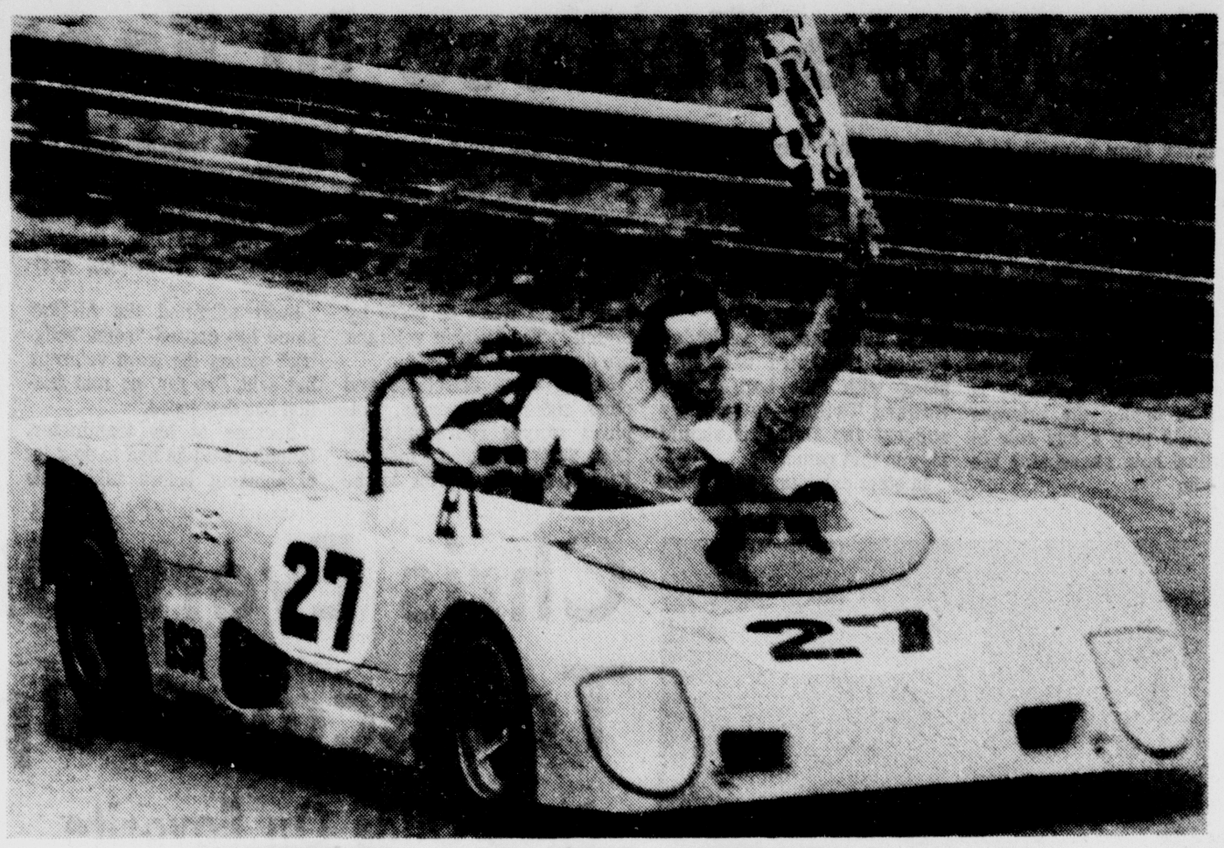
A. This is sailing against the wind, with the wind coming from ahead. A sailboat will not travel directly into the wind, but will make good speed in a direction that is only 45 to 50 degrees off the direction from which the wind is coming.

Q. In the shortest terms tell me how do you pick up a mooring under sail alone . . .?

A. Approach buoy from downwind on a course that would put mooring about a boat length to windward if you were to sail past it. On the approach, lower and secure jib. When mooring buoy is one boat length to windward, bring boats head into wind (luff). The crafts momentum allows it to coast up to buoy. Secure mooring line, then lower mainsail. It sounds complicated, but watch an expert do it once, and youre an expert too.

Q. What are the fastest sailboats?

A. There are several types of very light catamarans that will beat any other type of sailing craft under "average conditions. That means fairly light winds and calm water. Most will do 20 to 25 knots (23 - 28 mph) easily. They are great fun but not very practical. C-class catamarans have to be clocked at 35 mph.



VICTORY LAP FOR MEDICAL MAN

Novato driver Dr. John Korn and crew member Richard Poliak (waving flag) acknowledged crowd applause on their victory lap after winning the main race last Sunday in Laguna Seca Raceways June Sprints. Driving a Class B Lola sports racer in the eighth and final race, Dr. Korn came from behind to pass townsman Dick Raymond. The race covered 21 laps.

BASEBALL ROUNDUP

15 Down, One To Go For Gaylord Perry

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

It's now 15 down and one to go for Gaylord Perry.

The "reformed" greaseballer stretched his winning streak to 15 straight last night as he shrugged off an 84-minute rain delay. He now needs just one more to match the American League record and four more to match the major league mark.

"I never think of the record while I'm on the mound, I'm only thinking of the game and the hitter. The pressure doesn't affect me but I know its there. I think it makes me a better pitcher," Perry said after his seven-hitter gave the Cleveland Indians a 4-2 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

The American League record of 16 straight is shared by Smokey Joe Wood, Walter Johnson, Lefty Grove and Schoolboy Rowe. The major league mark of 19 straight was set by Rube Marquard for the old New York Giants in 1912.

Perry will go for record-tying mark on the West Coast. The Indians play at California this weekend and go to Oakland Monday night.

Baltimore 9-6, Boston 2-4

Baltimore tightened up the AL East race by sweeping the Red Sox. In the opener, Don Baylor got three hits to pace the Orioles' rout. In the second game, Paul Blair capped a four-run first inning with a two-run double.

Tigers 8, Yanks 6

Braves 5, Astros 4

Hank Aaron delivered a pinch-hit sacrifice fly in the 11th inning to give the Braves a victory over the Astros. Dusty Baker doubled to lead off the Braves' 11th and was sacrificed to third. Dave Johnson and Marty Perez were walked intentionally and Aaron, batting for Johnny Oates, delivered his fly ball to score Baker.

Dodgers 4-0, Reds 1-6

Mike Marshall ran his record string of relief appearances to 13 games by preserving John's 12th win in the opener as the Dodgers beat the Reds for the seventh straight time. In the nightcap Don Gullett pitched a four-hitter and the Reds got homers from Pete Rose and Joe Morgan to salvage a split.

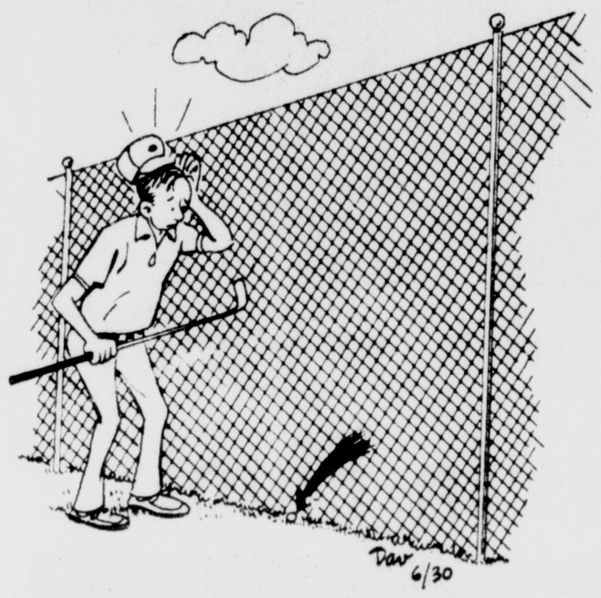
TREVINO TALKS GOLF



Fence Problems

By LEE TREVINO

If some of my Mexican ancestors hadn't jumped a fence back yonder somewhere, I'd be selling postcards in Juarez instead of playing golf. But when your ball rolls against a fence, jumping it won't help.

Say your tee shot stops near a fence on the right of the fairway, with the green a few degrees to your left.

This demands a "pull," so hood the club and swing it straight down the fence line. The turned-in clubface will snatch the ball toward the green.

Remember that if you hood a 7-iron, it will have the loft of a 5-iron. Use your judgment on how hard to bust it, depending on the distance to the target.

Take a couple of practice swings above the ball to form a mental picture of what you're trying to do. It also helps you get a "feel" for the distance between the club and fence.

There'll be times when your only escape is to chip away from the fence. A putter works nicely if the ground is smooth.

If the ball rolls near a fence to your left, that ol' Texas wedge — the putter — is muy bueno. It's dependable. Some guys can invert a lofted iron and swing it left-handed, but this takes practice.

Philadelphia Rallies To Edge Quakes, 2-1

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Atoms took first place in the Eastern Division of the North American Soccer League last night by coming from behind to defeat the San Jose Earthquakes, 2-1.

San Jose took a 1-0 lead at 23:57 of the first half on a 20-yard low shot into the left corner by Art Welch, after taking a pass from Paul Childs. Philadelphia tied the game at 22:12 of the second half when Jim Fryatt headed a corner van who sent the ball to goalie Mike Ivanow. Ivanow then kicked the ball to Peter Zaidel. The ball came off Zaidel's foot into his own net.

Milwaukee Golf: Sneed In Lead

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

MILWAUKEE — It's been a lean year for Ed Sneed, so don't mind if he has that hungry look in the Greater Milwaukee Open.

Sneed went into today's second round with a two-stroke lead over Curtis Sifford and Tommy Aaron thanks to a six-under par 66 performance over the 7,010-yard Tuckaway Country Club course yesterday.

"I got off to a slow start this year," he said. "I was sick a few times and it did throw off my practice schedule. I didn't feel up to it."

In fact, Sneed isn't among the top 100 money winners on the tour.

Hendricks said the plans are not definite because they are still under negotiation with Mill Valley officials. If approvals can be obtained, he wants to start construction in a few months and hopes for completion in a year.

Hendricks plans about three new buildings with a total floor area of about 60,000 square feet.

Politz, who started operating a market in San Francisco in 1946, took over the Lincoln Market five years ago. After selling the market, he hopes to semi-retire and possibly go into wine selling. Politz said Lincoln Market is one of the oldest in the county, dating back to 1890.

CLOTHESLINE, a San Rafael store featuring casual wear for men and women, hopes to attract the student crowd, under a new manager who took over this week.

Greg Walker of San Anselmo took over the management of the store, located at 821 Francisco Boulevard West, next to Graham's Lumber & Hardware, around the corner from Blue Chip Stamps. "I'm trying to make it a high school and college type of store with discounts for students," said Walker.

Clothesline features Levi's, Kennington shirts, clothes by Campus and other apparel from socks to sweaters for both men and women. It is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday, noon to 5 on Sunday, and until 9 p.m. on Fridays.

Walker attended College of Marin and graduated from Foothill College in Los Altos in 1972. For the past four years he had worked for Marin Piano and Organ Company.

The Clothesline was opened by John Graham Sr. two and one-half years ago. Graham decided to turn management over to Walker and concentrate his attention on his lumber and hardware business, which he has had for 36 years. Graham Lumber and Hardware was established by his father 48 years ago.

Novato Man Receives Patent For Containers

Clyde Cain of Novato, captain with American President Lines, just received patents on cargo containers that automatically lock in place when they are stacked aboard ships, trucks or railroad cars.

Cain said his invention eliminates the need to manually lock the containers to each other when they are stacked two, three or four high. Called the Improved Cargo Container Interlock System, the new mechanism is compatible with existing containers. "It can be installed in new containers when they are manufactured as well as being installed in existing containers," said Cain. Containers using his new invention can be used along with conventional containers.

Cain has an associate in Taiwan working on models of the Improved Cargo Container Iterlock System. He hopes to have his invention manufactured and in operation by this fall.

"When it gets going, it will probably be known as the Cain-tainer System," he quipped. He has no idea what the invention is worth. "It could be worth a million if it catches on."

Cargo containers are normally eight feet high, eight feet wide and from 20 to 40 feet long, capable of holding 20 to 30 tons of cargo.

A resident of Marin for 36 years, Cain has been with American President Lines since 1957. His father, the late Robert Cain, founded Cain's Tire in 1937.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

No-Load Funds And Long Term Growth

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Are there no-load funds with as good rates of capital appreciation (long term) as the better load funds? If so, would you name them? Is this a good time to buy mutual funds for long-term growth? — B.S.

A. In brief, yes to all three questions. Pinpointing market bottoms is feasible only in retrospect. Certainly from the present depressed level, an investment for long-range appreciation makes sense. Vance, Sanders last year printed an interesting illustration of a man who for logical reasons — wars, recessions, government scandals — "sat tight" rather than taking the plunge with his capital. At the end of 50 years he had missed a rise of 1900% in the market, as measured by the Standard & Poor's Industrial Average. Only in the first decade 1923-1933 would he have been behind.

The investor selecting a mutual fund today is confronted with upward of 700 choices. Taking the time to make a good selection can be well worthwhile. Past performance is a starting point. In the last decade, 7 of the top twenty-five funds were no loads. Performance in this case measures total return, including income dividends as well as capital gains. However, performance does not tell the full story since it may be due to one or two spectacular years. A fund which consistently outperforms the averages, in both up and down periods, is a better choice for the long haul.

Other important considerations in choosing a fund are their investment goals — do they match yours — portfolio turnover rate, over 100% usually indicates a speculative management policy and the quality of the portfolio. A heavy concentration in over-the-counter and non-dividend-paying stocks would certainly suggest a volatile performance record.

Two excellent no-load funds which fit your investment goals are: David L. Babson Investors, 301 W. 11th St., Kansas City, Mo. 64105, and Johnston Mutual Fund, 460 Park Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Marin County Planning Commission will hold a public hearing to consider the Commission's amendments to Title 22 (Zoning) of the Marin County Code, which amendments would reclassify, separably and independently, the following properties in the Wolfback Ridge area, including properties all or partially designated as Ridge and Upland Greenbelt Open Space in the Marin Countywide Plan. Also included are public lands purchased as part of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, which should be rezoned O-A (Open Area District).

As described in the Planning Commission's adopted policies for rezoning open space area designated in the Marin Countywide Plan, the purpose of the proposed rezoning is to apply very low densities, to protect the open space character of the areas, and to achieve consistency with the plan's policies. In most cases, a very low density, RMP (residential, Multiple Planned District), will be recommended because it allows maximum flexibility in building placement and allows either detached or attached units. The Commission will consider rezoning to either a higher or lower density, according to the specific characteristics of the site, at the time development plans are presented. The possibility of provision of low, moderate, or middle-income housing will be one of the considerations to be applied to the decision concerning density at the time of the review of the development.

The following parcels are included in this proposal:

56 Who Gave Us Example To Ponder

One hundred ninety-eight years ago today, John Hancock, as president of the Second Continental Congress, signed the Declaration of Independence declaring the United States of America to be free from British control.

As he did so, there was a 500-pound price on his head. British troops had been sent to capture him, and he had escaped only by fleeing Lexington when warned by Paul Revere. Even as he affixed his name to the newly voted declaration, a fleet of British ships was gathered off New York. The largest body of armed men ever sent to North America was about to land to crush the Revolution. And from a general amnesty offered those who renounced the revolt and returned allegiance to the British crown, two names were expressly omitted: those of Hancock and Samuel Adams. For them, there was no amnesty offered.

This did not deter Hancock.

NEITHER DID the dangers that their act invited deter the 55 others — many of them men of wealth, all (except Sam Adams) of considerable property — who signed along with Hancock on Aug. 2, after the declaration had been engrossed on parchment to become a permanent record.

One hundred ninety-eight years later, it pays us to look back on those men, and on what they did.

They were not moved by consideration of personal gain. All knowingly placed their possessions and their lives in jeopardy.

They were not moved by hope for power. There was nothing in the Declaration of Independence to give power to any of them.

They signed knowing the risks they took —for principle.

Many of them paid dearly, in loss of possessions and loved ones. Many had to live for years as fugitives, while British troops moved almost at will over the lands of the newly declared United States.

Yet they signed knowing full well these things might happen. They did so because they believed people should govern themselves, and not be subject to laws and rules imposed by some far-off power. They did so because they believed firmly in something that then did not even exist: a government of free men "deriving (its) just powers from the consent of the governed." And they believed so firmly they were willing, as the declaration said, to "mutually pledge to each other our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor."

WOULD THESE 56 have permitted a Watergate? Would these 56 have used their offices to enrich themselves at public expense? Would these 56 have arrogantly told the people, "We know what's good for you. We will tax the money from you and then return it to you as we feel wise?"

The questions answer themselves.

One hundred ninety-eight years later, we sorely need more leaders like the 56 who signed the Declaration of Independence.

THE DECLINE AND FALL OF THE U.S.A.?

Americans Can Have Society They Want

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND
(Fourth in a series of five articles.)

WASHINGTON — There is no doubt in my mind that the American people can have any kind of society or government they want.

This truth is implicit in Alistair Cooke's simple but demanding diagnosis:

"The republic can be kept... if we care to keep it."

THERE IS EVIDENCE that the American people do care and will compel reform equal to the need.

There is evidence that the American people are searching for new political leadership and will elect it where they can find it.

There is no sense of hopelessness in the minds of most Americans, and there is none in the minds of numerous opinion leaders — philosophers, scientists, sociologists, educators — with whom I have consulted in preparing these articles.

Certainly faith in politicians and trust in government are perilously low — and for good reason. It couldn't be otherwise in light of the excesses, abuses and other crimes against our democracy which have been committed.

But the most significant finding of the opinion polls, which suggests the shape of things to come, is not pervasive cynicism but pervasive confidence in the future of the United States. Gallup reports that as many as seven in every 10 Americans express a high degree of confidence in our democratic institutions despite a low degree of confidence in leadership.

RECOVERY WILL NOT come for the asking. It may well require a long, painful, patient process. It is attainable.

There is no single, simple panacea. The radiant goal must be a people worthy of good government and a government worthy of good people.

Here are some of the things which could help bring this about:

— Pass whatever laws are needed to take money corruption totally out of federal elections and not allow big donors to buy a piece of the government.

— Demand open government openly transacted by Congress and by the executive branch. Tolerate secrecy only at a minimum.

— Galvanize the teaching of the democratic process at every level of education. Radical improvement is needed.

— Don't weaken the presidency in order to punish a president. As the only nationally elected official, the president must be the lobbyist for all the people, and our far-flung and diverse democratic order requires strong presidents for the effective operation of government.

— The counterbalance to presidential power is presidential accountability. The White House press conference is no longer adequate to satisfy this accountability. Why shouldn't a president be required, by constitutional amendment if necessary, to explain his actions in a periodical question period before Congress?

— A higher standard of private ethics is indispensable to regaining a higher standard of public ethics.

THIS IS FROM Merle Miller's oral history of Harry Truman:

Miller: "You have a basic trust in people?"

Truman: "If you don't have trust in your fellow man, how can you expect him to have trust in you?"

Miller: "A lot of people don't feel that way any more."

Truman: "It's a pity. That's the reason we're in the shape we're in."

And these thoughts from John Gardner of Common Cause:

"Motivation and morale are everything... Citizens no longer believe that America is their venture... We had better give the citizen a role in the great task of self-government. That, in my judgment, is essential if we are to save this nation from slow death by demoralization."

THE PRESIDENCY may be weakened and Congress may be lethargic, but the American people are becoming aroused. I have evidence. I took a poll of newspaper readers in every section of the country, and from it emerged an explosive political fact capable of changing the face of American politics in 1976.

The clear majority showed that it gives a far higher priority to personal character than to political ideology in choosing political leaders, and that the primary concern is with decency and rectitude rather than with the traditional criterion of whether a candidate is conservative or liberal — as long as he is not too far in either direction.

The ingredients of recovery from the dark decade of the '60s and early '70s are within reach — if we care enough. I think we do.

(NEXT: Drummond calls on some distinguished Americans to comment.)

"O.K., guys — time out to salute!"

Our Free Press Is Essential, But It's Not Very Popular

The people's right of a free press was initially and magnificently affired in the United States Constitution and has been wisely sustained by the Supreme Court almost without exception ever since. This is indeed the fact in the most recently decided cases.

But the people's right is always in danger. It is subject to profound misunderstanding by the people themselves, never more than today.

Thus in the very case last week where the Supreme Court unanimously decided Pat L. Turnillo Jr. had no right of reply to newspaper editorials, Turnillo may be correct when he commented: "I think it is a decision with which the overwhelming majority of citizens do not agree. Most think that a law giving public access to the overwhelming power of newspapers is needed today."

THERE IS EXTENSIVE and acute dissatisfaction with news media in the United States today. I get around the country a lot and I meet it on every hand. It has been intensified by Watergate, but it existed before Watergate and it will continue no matter how the constitutional crisis is resolved.

The Constitution's simple affirmation of a free press, and the Supreme Court's clear, unanimous perception of it, will probably prevent the public from destroying an institution that is of indispensable value to them.

But the structure of the news media today raises severe problems. I suppose it is mainly a matter of concentration of power. In the old days, when there were several actively competing newspapers in every American city of any size, most everybody could find a paper suiting his particular bias.

This was true throughout the 19th Century. It didn't mean the papers were paragons of accuracy or objectivity. They certainly weren't. They distorted political news atrociously. But their distortions —some pro-Republican, some pro-Democrat, or some particular faction therein — pleased portions of the public. Everybody was happy.

Mainly economic factors forced the consolidation of most American newspapers in the 20th Century. Diversity of bias diminished and almost vanished in given communities. The sole remaining newspaper, if responsible, had to try to serve the whole community as best it could. Often it suited no particular bias.

NO DOUBT SOME rare persons exist whose political views are detached and Olympian. But most readers have sharp opinions. Indeed, the more detached the paper sought to be, the more likely it was not to please anybody very intensely.

The radio and television networks are also concentrated. They have to cover the news pretty tersely, and when they have opinions —as through editorials or commentaries —these are thoroughly distasteful to all who disagree. And they, too, are accused of bias.

Latterly, the issues in the presidential crisis have tended to evoke broadly similar opinions and very comparable news selection from all the media. The dissenting public has been growing angrier and angrier though the media were objectively vindicated by their early efforts to uncover malfeasance in office. Even then, they were often blamed as the messenger bringing bad news.

IT CANNOT be denied that the function of providing news and opinion is considerably concentrated. A large part of news coverage for all the media comes through two wire services. Syndicated columns of opinion are widely used. Chain ownership of newspapers has increased. The national television networks are concentrated into three major groups.

Those who operate the media are not infallible. They must exercise judgment every hour; even the act of selection is an important editorial decision. They have views of their own difficult to sublimate.

Opinion-riddled writing has become more and more fashionable. The line between background-reporting, interpreting, and editorializing is not easy to draw or to defend.

Anyway, I am convinced that the people in the free societies are more accurately and efficiently and vividly informed today than at any time in history. Butthey don't know it, and many of them won't agree.

WINDOW ON THE WORLD

Austria Joins Switzerland As Island Of Neutrality

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Smack on the line dividng east and west, Austria is joining Switzerland as an island of neutrality, making a major contribution to the peace of central Europe.

It is a positive policy, neutral as opposed to passive neutralism, independent yet linked firmly by tradition and economics to the West, a choice recognized and accepted by the Soviet Union, and so ingrained in the Austrian political structure that in a presidential election just completed, foreign policy played no role at all.

With Foreign Minister Rudolf Kirchschlager as their candidate, the Socialists won it as they have every presidential election since World War II.

THE AUSTRIANS themselves compare their country with Switzerland, not as a bridge between capitalism and communism but as a meeting place.

Historically, the two nations reached present places by widely divergent paths.

Swiss neutrality goes back 350 years and is so strong in the Swiss mentality it still restrains Switzerland from full membership in the United Nations.

It has been profitable for Switzerland, standing as a mountain fortress amid the competing nations of Europe, a land of bankers and numbered bank accounts.

PRESENT-DAY AUSTRIA is of more recent origin, a remnant of empire, a story-book land of the blue Danube, the Vienna Woods and Strauss, and, grimly and more recently of Nazi German and then of Russian occupation.

And it is because the latter two are of recent memory that Austrian neutrality has both emotional and practical roots.

Kirschschlager declares that Austria's relations with its communist neighbors are good "because we always declared very frankly where we stand from an ideological point of view."

Says Chancellor Bruno Kreisky, "a small nation has to respect international law."

BEYOND THE FACTS of history, current events give the Austrians cause to hasten efforts to cement firmly their new place as a meeting ground between East and West.

The 1968 invasion of Czechoslovakia by the Soviet Union and the Warsaw pact nations upset the Austrians, who saw in it a bald communist threat to their own independence.

Today they worry about the eventual passing of Yugoslavia's 82-year-old President Tito.

The fear that Russian forces might use Austria as a bridge to cross into and devour Yugoslavia is an old one made more pressing by Tito's age.

On the left bank of the Danube are rising the 20-story towers of a new United Nations center whose first occupants will be the International Atomic Energy Agency and the UN Industrial Development Organization.

Also meeting in Vienna have been the East-West conference on reduction of forces in central Europe and the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The Austrian theory is that the more Vienna develops as a UN center in which thousands of families of various national origins reside, the more other nations will hesitate to violate its neutrality.

Sunset Parkway Safety Hazards Cited

On June 6, reporter Theron Newell devoted a portion of his "Reporter's Notebook" column in the Independent Journal to a discussion of recent action taken by the Novato City Council. Mr. Newell criticized the city council for approving the extension of Rowland Boulevard as an access route to Indian Valley College. His only expressed reason for criticizing the council was that road extension is expensive and the whole matter could be resolved simply by investing $20 in two signs directing motorists to use Sunset Parkway to reach the college. In my judgment, Mr. Newell has sorely misapprehended the problem.

First, all that the Novato City Council approved was the possible extension of Rowland Boulevard sometime in the future. No positive commitment to extension was undertaken nor was any timetable formulated.

Second, Mr. Newell's attention to the economics of the problem only gives a small part of the picture...Primarily, development of the college will seriously overburden Sunset Parkway with vehicular traffic. This overburdening will result not only in inadequate access to the college, but also in impaired access to persons using Sunset Parkway to travel to other locations. But the fundamental problem created by this overburdening is the aggravation of an already serious problem, namely the severe safety problem which already exists on Sunset Parkway...

The purpose of this letter is to try to stress to you the importance of the problem which exists along Sunset Parkway. Like other parents in the area, I am vitally concerned with finding a solution to the dangerous traffic problem which exists on Sunset Parkway. Clearly, several stop signs are now needed on Sunset moreover, work must begin immediately to finance and construct additional access routes to the college...

Richardson Bay Anchorages Needed

A great issue is at stake on our beautiful Richardson Bay. A proposal has been issued by the Coast Guard to eliminate anchoring of boats except transient visitors. We are being informed through the media that this is to eliminate the congestion of houseboats at Gates Five and Six, but it goes far deeper. Anchored fishing boats and yachts are the main targets, and every day are being visited by the Coast Guard and told to move, the Coast Guard working on the assumption that they are a navigation hazard. In my opinion this is not so.

I have used many East Coast harbors in which there are few docks, and most boars are anchored out. In comparison Richardson Bay has abundant room to maneuver in. What is needed here are clearly defined areas for anchoring, not elimination of all anchoring. The people who anchor out here are responsible, working, tax-paying citizens, and have as much right to our waters as those who tie their boats to docks. Let us not discriminate against our own people. If this proposal goes through unchanged, we, and our children in future generations will lose the right to choose where we will keep our boats. As for the main complainees — those who bump into the anchored boats, perhaps they should learn to be better boatmen before the Coast Guard decides to license us all to be sure we know how to handle boats.

Don't Leave It To Canadians To Cheer For Our Country

(Reprinted from Christian Science Monitor)

Hurrah for the red, white, and blue! Do Americans have to let Canadian radio announcers say it for them on best-selling records? Or wouldn't this Fourth of July be the time for some good old-faashioned patriotism to light up the sky along with the Roman candles?

Well, there go the cynics in the audience, drifting away after one paragraph.

Would all the rest of you folks like to come a little closer in case you can't believe your ears?

"WE HOLD THESE TRUTHS to be self-evident, that all men are created equal..." The United States may not yet have perfected this product, but a lot of other countries are still trying to import it.

"That they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable rights..." Yes, everybody is.

"That among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness..." Who could ask for anything more?

"That to secure these rights, governments are instituted among men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed...." Does that mean me? Yes, you.

"That whenever any form of government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it..."

The right of the people?

Yes, whatever goes wrong with America, it is the right of the people to bring their country back to those Independence Day ideals of 1776.

THIS IS WHAT should be written across the rocket-lit sky of the Fourth in 1974. And, for those who long for the "good old days" when everyone "knew his place" and no one "rocked the boat," it may be time to take a real look at what's been happening.

Despite many indefensible disparities, more Americans are coming closer to realizing more of their Creator-endowed rights than ever before. Their form of government, instead of being "destructive of these ends," is acting, however slowly, to preserve the rights of the people and check the invasion of these rights.

Maybe bunting is out of fashion in the disillusioned 1970's. But think how disillusioned the 1770's must have been, and how sturdy the people's response to adversity. Now the grand old flag may have dwindled to a lapel pin, but its meaning still flies high. Hurrah!

Arabs Need Birth Explosion To Recycle Oil Billions

PARIS — "There's your problem," said Francois as an Arab sheik walked by the bar at the Hotel George V.

We were talking about the economy in Europe, and Francois was trying to explain it to me.

"You mean there are too many Arab sheiks?" I asked him.

"No, I mean there are not enough sheiks — oil sheiks to be specific. This shortage of Arab potentates is killing everyone."

"How's that?"

"IT'S CALLED recycling. When you Americans once had money, you came by the millions to Europe and spent it here. When you ran out of money and the Japanese had it all, they came here to spend it. We always complained about tourists, but it was one of the best ways to keep the money in circulation.

"Now," said Francois sadly, "the Arabs have all the money and there are not enough of them to spread it around."

"I thought there were a lot of Arabs in the world," I said.

"There are," replied Francois, "but they are not the right kind. Only a few of them have any of the oil money. The king of Saudi Arabia, for example, who must have made $21 billion on oil this year, has about 132 sons and nephews. That means each son or nephew would have to spend $160 million for the rest of us to get even."

"That would be tough to do," I admitted.

"MOST OF THE OIL sheiks leave their wives at home, so you don't get any business at Dior, Balenciaga or Givenchy. They don't buy any art, and they're not known for their wine consumption. What can they spend their money on?"

"Post cards?"

"Exactly. Even if they ate at Maxim's twice a day, they wouldn't be able to use up all the money that's rolling in. The other oil sheikdoms are no better. I would say at the maximum there are about 1,000 Arab families who are responsible for recycling $40 billion a year. There is no way they can do it."

"What's the answer, Francois?"

"THE OIL KINGDOMS have to produce more Arabs. We have to start a population explosion program in Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi, Bahrain and Kuwait so the royal families will give birth to more princes."

"Won't that take time?" I asked.

"Maybe, but if they start now at least we'll have a change in the '80s when our oil bill will be somewhere around $100 billion."

"How do you persuade the Arab sheiks to have more children?" I asked Francois.

"You give them free 'birth explosion' pills. You set up an Unplanned Parenthood Agency where you counsel them on the joys of having very large families. You persuade the sheiks that the more mouths they have to feed, the easier it will be for them to get rid of their money."

"IT SOUNDS LIKE a dream to me, Francois."

"Perhaps," he replied, "but if it works I can see the day when there will be nothing but Arab princes walking down the Champs Elysees. The Place de la Concorde will be filled with Cadillacs; the Folies Bergere will be jammed with burnooses, and there will be so many sheiks in Paris that Frenchmen will scrawl in chalk on their walls, 'ARABIANS GO HOME!' "

The Arab sheik came into the bar with three bodyguards. They ordered Coca-Colas.

Francois whispered to me, "You see what I mean? How can you recycle a $21 billion oil bill when all they buy is four Coca-Colas?"

Stinson Beach Trustee Resigns

Susan E. Washington of Stinson Beach has resigned from the Bolinas-Stinson School District board.

Mrs. Washington, 31, told board members Tuesday that she will be leaving the country. She was elected to the board last April and her term will expire in March 1975.

Trustees will appoint a replacement to serve the remaining nine months of Mrs. Washington's term, according to Judy Anderson, District Secretary.

In other business, board members hired Ron Sebert as resource teacher at an annual salary of $9,334.

PUBLIC IS WARY

End Is Asked To IRS Favors

By DAVID R. FRANCIS
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

WASHINGTON — After President Nixon's unhappy experience with his income-tax returns, future presidents undoubtedly will be more careful in going over their tax forms, more cautious in the use of fancy tax-saving gimmicks.

Nevertheless, there remains a need for some system to assure the public that the administration of the tax laws is evenhanded for all taxpayers.

The public must be confident that top government officials do not receive what Thomas F. Field, executive director of Taxation With Representation, terms a "sweetheart audit."

That's the kind of audit the Internal Revenue Service gave Nixon's returns the first time around.

The President even got a nice letter from the district director of the IRS in Baltimore.

"I want to compliment you," wrote William D. Waters on June 1, 1973, "on the care shown in the preparation of your returns."

Then an indignant IRS agent illegally leaked the President's tax returns to a newspaper. Consequently, the IRS made a second audit this year. The result: the President owed $432,787.13 in back taxes.

The news that the President, earning $200,000 a year, paid almost nothing in taxes was a shock to the public. It apparently has badly damaged the reputation of the federal income-tax system.

A new poll taken for the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations finds that only 26 per cent of the public consider the income tax the fairest tax. Two years ago a similar survey showed that 36 per cent ranked the income tax fairest.

This is a serious development. The federal income tax depends largely on voluntary self-assessment by the taxpayers. More people may cheat on their taxes if they feel the system is unfair.

Since income taxes are the dominant source of federal revenue, widespread tax evasion would weaken the government.

Field, who manages a struggling organization of tax experts striving to represent the public interest, figures the problem of auditing the tax returns of high officials "will be with us long after Richard Nixon is gone."

Up to this past winter, IRS officials apparently assumed that tax returns of presidents were above reproach. Congressional testimony showed that as a rule they were delivered from the White House to the office of commissioner of the IRS. After not much more than a glance, they were put in a safe.

Many wonder whether IRS agents can be fair in auditing their "bosses."

A high staff official with the congressional Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation comments: "No IRS official will give the commissioner's return a very hard look. Nor would any agent give the secretary of the treasury's return a hard look. I don't know what the answer to this is."

He might have added that the IRS agents might also feel some constraint in examining the tax returns of key members of the congressional tax committees.

So far Congress has made no moves to deal with this problem. If they do, members of Taxation with Representation have some suggestions.

One relatively easy solution would be to have the statute of limitations applicable to tax returns begin when a president, vice-president, treasury secretary, and IRS commissioner leave office.

Then, notes Martin B. Cowan, a New York tax lawyer, a president would no longer have the massive power of the office of the presidency behind him. He would be more likely to enjoy the same privacy and other protections accorded other citizens.

Other suggestions call for some independent body such as the General Accounting Office to examine the returns of these key officials. Another plan is that the Joint Committee on Internal Revenue Taxation, a congressional body, do the examining.

Commissioner Donald C. Alexander holds that such outside audit is not necessary: "We think we can do this job effecitvely, fairly and evenhandedly. We will audit those who deserve to be audited regardless of their position or status."
